Zena Sculptor Badly Hurt Stunting Glider At Airport on Monday

William Sewell of Zena, Member of Kingston Glider Club, Refused to Heed Warning About Stunting and Crashed Ship—Critically Injured.

William Sewell, 31, of Zena, a sculptor, was critically injured at the Kingston Airport Monday evening shortly after 8 o'clock, when the glider in which he was flying dived to the ground.

Sewell, who is a member of the Kingston Glider Club, has been flying a glider for over a year and did considerable gliding last summer. He came to the airport Sunday and took the glider out for the first time this year and, according to officials at the airport, did considerable diving and zooming at that time, so much so that other members of the Glider Club are said to have warned him that if he wished to stay in the club he would have to stop doing stunts.

Monday evening about 8 Sewell again came down to the field and took the glider up. He was towed from the eastern end of the field and was put up at the end of 300 feet tow rope when he reached the other end of the field. He cut the rope loose, turned over the hangar and then dived, according to spectators, to within a couple of feet or so of the ground, to get up speed. Then he went straight up, reached a height of about 50 feet, when apparently the glider stalled, turned and plunged headfirst to the ground. Sewell was thrown out as his safety belt broke. The nose part of the glider was smashed and the front part of the frame bent, but otherwise it sustained little damage.

Sewell was picked up unconscious and taken to the Kingston Hospital, where he was treated by Dr. Joseph Jacobson. Reports from the hospital this noon stated that Mr. Sewell was still unconscious and that his condition was regarded as serious.

4 Local Men Arrested At Cock Fight Sunday

Four Kingston men and one from High Falls were among 32 arrested by state troopers in a raid on a cock fight at Ernest Nardone's "The Homestead" near Washington Hollow, Dutchess county, Sunday. Justice Davis of South Millbrook fined Nardone, sponsor of the cock fight, $25, and each of the others, $5.

Those who gave their address as Kingston were: John Murphy, 45, of 24 Broadway; Frank Carlen, 46, same address; Kenneth Van Kleeck, 33 of 52 Smith avenue; Frank Saunders, 36, of Kingston. The High Falls man was William Kinney, 27. He was the youngest of the group, the ages of which ranged up to 85 years. William Elkins of Poughkeepsie being the oldest.

Troopers said the cocks were prize birds and went into battle fully equipped with spurs. The officers seized 10 birds.

Abandoned Baby Found on Porch

Monday morning some one left an infant baby boy on the porch of the home of Alfred Saunders on Market street in Saugerties, and despite a search of local birth records the Saugerties police have found no clue leading to the identity of the child. The discovery of the boy was made by Mrs. Henrietta Fellows, who lives nearby. Mrs. Fellows first heard the cries of the infant about 5 o'clock that morning and on looking out of her window saw a bundle lying on the porch of the Saunders home. She called the Saunders on the telephone. The baby was inexpensively clothed. Its hands were tucked inside a little kimono so that they would not be exposed to the weather and the child was wrapped in a white blanket from feet to neck, only the head being exposed.

Vote Before 10 o'clock

Whatever your convictions as to the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment, it is your duty to go to the polls and vote on the question. Let there be no ground for the losers to make a claim that they lost because of lack of interest, deception, or any other reason than that a majority of the voters was against them.

Let's settle the question and settle it emphatically by a full vote.

You have an opinion. Express it at the polls, the only place you can express it effectively. Then, having done your duty, shut up and abide by the decision.

Verdicts Returned in Favor of the Smiths

Vivian W. Smith Awarded $1,200 and Allan Smith $400—Action to Recover for Injuries to Boy Taken Up.

Late Monday afternoon the jury in the actions brought by Vivian W. Smith and Allan T. Smith against the V. Auto Delivery, Inc., and C. T. Donahue, driver of the truck, returned verdicts in favor of plaintiffs. In the case of Vivian W. Smith an award of $1,200 was made and in the case of Allan Smith the verdict was $400. The actions grew out of a motor car crash on Route 9-W below Port Ewen. Robert J. Howard appeared for the plaintiffs and Frank W. Brooks for defendants.

When the charge to the jury in the previous actions was in progress the clerk and jurors retired to the supervisors' rooms with counsel in Nos. 27-A and 582, and a jury was drawn. The trial followed immediately after the jury in the Smith actions had retired. Howard Whitaker, Jr., by guardian, and Howard Whitaker seek to recover damages from Morris Kirshenblum for injuries which the lad received on February 8, last, when it is alleged he was struck by a truck of defendant on North Front street. James Folwell of Franklin street, was driver of the truck. Palmer Canfield appears for plaintiff and Judge Bernard A. Culloton for the defendant. The case was resumed this morning at the opening of supreme court.

Nos. 16 and 499, 12½ and 460 and 479, 13 and 21-A and 22-A, 35, 41, 42, 23-A. These cases were placed on the active day calendar and counsel in those cases were warned to be ready when the cases were reached. In the event of some disposition being made of the cases without trial, Judge Staley requested counsel to reach if possible that disposition before the cases were reached for trial in order that the activity of the court be not retarded by a settlement announcement when the case was called for trial with the result that the attorneys in the case case following would not be ready to go on immediately.

MILK BOARD TAKES STEPS TO HEAD OFF NEWEST "RACKET"

Albany, N. Y., May 23 (AP).—The state milk control board today took drastic steps to head off the newest "racket" reported under its price fixing orders designed to improve are dairy industry.

Commissioner Charles H. Baldwin, chairman of the board, revealed that dealers henceforth will be required to submit a monthly report showing in detail the amount of milk used in the various classes.

The "racket" consists of dealers buying milk from other dealers at rates lower than those which they are required to pay producers for class 1 milk. The theory of the board is that they are reselling for fluid consumption milk which was presumably going into other uses.

The board announced that it will take steps to determine the correctness of the dealers' reports and payments.

Baessler Planned His Death Carefully

Anton Baessler, held in the Ulster county jail awaiting sentence under a conviction of murder, second degree, for the killing of Uriah Quick, Leibardt farmer last January, evidently made very careful preparations for taking his own life. Handicapped by the lack of usual things which are available to persons on the outside Baessler devised means and methods for committing suicide in his cell in the jail.

Monday morning about 9 o'clock Baessler's lifeless body was found hanging in his cell on the main floor of the jail by Jailer Molyneaux and his assistant Claude Markle. About 8 o'clock Baessler had been observed in his cell by trusties who were cleaning up the corridor. At that time Baessler, who was to have been sentenced Thursday by County Judge Frederick G. Traver, was about his cell. He inquired of the trusties at work whether they had completed cleaning up the corridor in the vicinity of his cell. At that time he evidently was contemplating the act and desired that the portion of the jail near his cell be unoccupied when the time came to take his own life.

Assured that they had completed their work in that portion of the jail Baessler then evidently went to work to effect his own death. There was a short piece of pipe coming through the cell wall. It was too short to permit a man getting a toe hold upon it so Baessler took his handkerchief and made a sling sufficiently large to admit his toe. The mattress which is provided all prisoners is of very tough material and Baessler apparently found the material too tough to tear. Not to be turned from his desires he secured a match and burned the tick along one of the seams and with this material he made a noose. Stepping up into the sling which he had made from a handkerchief he threw the improvised rope over the pipe overhead and slipped the noose about his neck. All that remained to do was to slip his foot from the handkerchief and he was suspended a short distance above his cell floor. Death was from strangulation.

About 2 o'clock Claude Markle, one of the jailers, went into the jail to take in shaving material for one of the prisoners. At that time he was informed that Baessler was not apparently in his cell. He notified Jailer Molyneaux and together they went in to investigate and discovered the body of Baessler.

Michael Conner, who was convicted on Saturday along with Baessler on the charge of murdering Uriah Quick, took the suicide of his friend in his usual quiet manner, apparently unable to understand why such an act had been done after the jury had saved them from the electric chair by a second degree murder verdict instead of the first degree charge as named in the indictment. Monday afternoon Mike was apparently happily engaged in his cell in the jail back of the one formerly occupied by Baessler, playing cards.

The body of Baessler was turned over to Undertaker Frank J. McCardle of Rosendale at the request of members of the family.

LeRoy Lounsberry and Lloyd R. LeFever, attorneys who appeared for Baessler at the trial and who set up a defense which saved Baessler from the electric chair, appeared dumbfounded when informed of the act. Conner was represented by Roger H. Loughran at the trial and he also won a second degree conviction for Conner.

U. S. Disarm Drive Centers on France

President Roosevelt Looks For Word That France's Demand Has Been Satisfied By American Attitude.

Washington, May 23 (AP).—Quick French concurrence in an international pledge to abandon the mighty weapons of offensive warfare is now the foremost objective of Roosevelt diplomacy. While a welter of related problems clamored for the busy president's attention today, he confidently looked for word from overseas that France's traditional demand for concrete assurance of national security had been satisfied by the newly expressed American attitude promising cooperation in enforcing the peace of the world.

Meanwhile, a Japanese delegation was speeding to the capital to discuss with him the whole wide-ranging field of international economy. To the fore sprang the perplexing problem of warfare in the Orient, intensified by the position of Japanese troops at the gates of China's ancient capital and the American definition of an aggressor nation as one that sends its troops onto alien soil in violation of its treaties.

In addition, at least two more delegates to the London economic conference had to be chosen and announcement of their names was believed imminent. Hiram Johnson of California, unyielding Senate defender of the policy of isolation, was considering an invitation to become a delegate. James W. Wadsworth of New York, Republican House member, was regarded a strong possibility.

Second-day reflections on the new foreign policy, enunciated by Norman H. Davis, Roosevelt's ambassador-at-large, before the Geneva arms reduction conference, and a comparison of its principal points with French demands as stated in Paris Sunday night, brought a disposition to believe that agreement on general principles was near.

Predict Light Vote On Repeal Issue

Albany, N. Y., May 23 (AP).—With a sweeping wet victory conceded in advance by dry leaders, New York voters went to the polls today without any display of fervor to elect 150 delegates to the state prohibition repeal convention which will be held in Albany June 27.

Although last minute appeals were expected to bring out some additional votes on both sides, an unusually light vote was predicted.

New York is the sixth state to register an attitude toward the repeal of the 18th amendment. The other five states—Michigan, New Jersey, Rhode Island, Wisconsin and Wyoming—were recorded as overwhelmingly for repeal.

Most of the activity today was among the dry forces who, according to their own explanation, are trying to bring out "the best possible show of dry strength." The wets have done very little campaigning.

Morgan Discloses Firm's Assets Approach Half A Billion Dollars

Deposits Held By J. P. Morgan and Company Placed at a Quarter of a Billion—Defends Private Banking as a National Asset and Not a National Danger—Demurs at Submitting Partnership Articles of His Firm.

Washington, May 23 (AP).—Inner workings of the wealthy Morgan Banking firm were unraveled slowly today by a Senate committee examination of its master, J. P. Morgan, who quietly defended its business and disclosed that its assets approach half a billion dollars.

While willingly answering some questions, the elderly financier through John W. Davis—his counsel—demurred at submitting the partnership articles of his firm. That question was put over for future committee decision as to procedure.

Placing the deposits held by J. P. Morgan and Company at a quarter of a billion dollars, the witness also gave the exact assets as of December 31, 1932, to the penny—$424,708,095.56.

A gasp whirred through the packed committee room in the senate office building as he quietly went on. There are twenty partners, he said, who meet every week day except Saturday.

"Is there any written record of minutes?" he was asked.

"Only the names of those who attended."

"There is no record of the deliberations or conclusions?"

"None."

Morgan said it was decided not to keep minutes when the partners began their daily meetings about "20 years ago."

At the opening of testimony, in a prepared statement read by him with clear precision, Morgan defended the practice of his firm in permitting its partners to serve as directors of other companies in whose securities the bank is interested, saying such an arrangement was valuable to all concerned.

He criticized the present trend of legislation toward prohibition of such directorships.

It adds to the strength of private banks to accept deposits, he said, aware that the practice has recently been much criticized.

In substance, he defended private banking as "a national asset and not a national danger."

Answering the first questions from Pecora, Morgan gave his residence and business address and said he was a member of the firm of J. P. Morgan and Company in New York, Drexel and Company, a Philadelphia affiliate, and two houses abroad, Morgan and Company in Paris and Morgan, Grenfell and Company in London.

The business of J. P. Morgan and Company was founded in 1894.

"We conduct a general banking business such as is conducted under the laws of New York for a private bank," the witness said.

"We take deposits when they are offered, we take orders which we have executed on the stock exchange."

"But", he added, "the investment business is not the largest part of our business."

"How many members has your firm?" he was asked.

"I think it's 20."

"Were they always that many?"

"Oh, no, we added them as we needed them."

"How long has the firm been constituted as now exists?"

"Since January 2, 1932," Morgan said on a prompting from Davis.

Pecora asked for a copy of the articles of partnership.

"They are not here," Morgan replied.

Pecora said he thought a copy of the articles was essential to the hearing.

Davis objected. "The partners are all bonded."

Pecora contended the articles of co-partnership were essential to the hearing, but Senator Couzens asked that this matter be settled in "executive session" and the question was dropped for the time.

Senator Steiwer (R., Ore.) asked Pecora what phase of the inquiry would be pertinent to the partnership information.

"It is a question of liability of this firm which accepts deposits from the public," Pecora replied, but he did not press the matter.

Asked if his formal statement represented his own views," Morgan replied it did but had been read by his partners and none dissented.

"Does it express the views of all private bankers?" asked Couzens.

"I can speak only for myself," Morgan said.

"I wanted to make clear that it doesn't stand as a statement for all private banks," Couzens commented.

"Is the business departmentalized among the members?" Pecora asked.

"Not in any formal way," Morgan replied, amplifying in reply to further questions that "If a subject comes up and we have somebody who knows more about it, he handles it."

"What is assigned to you?"

"Nothing. I used to be very active but I found I had stolen very good partners and I have more and more to my partners. I have a general supervision and accept full responsibility."

Cuts Hand In Attempt To Enter Wife's Home

The sheriff's office and State Troopers received a call late Monday night from Olive Bridge where it was reported Herbert Mitchell had attempted to break into the house of his wife and had received severe injuries. Deputy Sheriffs Abram Molyneaux and Clayton Vredenburgh and State Trooper Metzer responded to the call and there found Herbert Mitchell suffering from a severe wound on his right hand which he had received when he attempted to break the glass in a door to gain admittance to the house. He was very weak from loss of blood and the officers took him in charge and at his request took him to the Benedictine Hospital where he was treated.

The officers were informed that Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell were living apart and during the night he had appeared and attempted to gain entrance. In breaking the glass of the door he suffered the injury. Disposition of the case was postponed pending treatment at the hospital.

West Point, N. Y., May 23 (AP).—Army officials announced today that Cadet John S. Conner, who disappeared yesterday from the military academy, had left a note "stating he was going absent without leave," but they declined to discuss police information that the note indicated suicidal intent.

The search for Conner, who was to have graduated with honors in a few days, was discontinued today.

In announcing that a note had been left by Conner, army information headquarters at the academy said that he "was probably suffering from strain due to the final written reviews which have been under way for the past three weeks."

Conner's parents at Medford, Ore., have telegraphed the superintendent of the academy thanking him for his efforts to locate the missing cadet.

The information about a suicide note was obtained from state police at nearby Monroe. They said the appeal to them for help in tracing the missing cadet stated flatly that he had left a note "that he was going to commit suicide."

DRY CHIEF SAYS BEER HAS CLOSED 50,000 SPEAKEASIES

San Francisco, May 23 (AP).—At least 50,000 speakeasies have been driven out of business by the new liberal beer laws, in the opinion of Major A. V. Dalrymple, national prohibition director, and many thousands more will be closed when better beer is manufactured.

"Not that the beer being sold at present is not good," Major Dalrymple said, "but it could be very much better and should be ripened more fully before being put on sale."

Of the 50,000 speakeasies driven to the wall, or forced to be converted into legal beer parlors, Major Dalrymple said 10,000 are in New York city and at least that many more in Chicago.

The prohibition director, here on a national tour of inspection, said last night that steps have been taken to prevent racketeering in legal beer by throwing safeguards around brewers and retailers, such as the system of duplicate invoices and revenue stamps.

A Washington Daybook

By HERBERT PLUMMER

WASHINGTON—Pre-election year is almost 12 months away and the presidential election year is much further removed, but the principal theme of campaign speeches for both of these events can, perhaps, be set down at this moment.

HERBERT PLUMMER

Unless all signs fail political stump speeches of the future are destined to be constructed on and around one big issue—Have the democrats and President Roosevelt shelved the congress and the Constitution?

Republicans likely will attempt to make much of this. They are murmuring about it even now. Of course, at the present, with "emergency conditions" still existing, they are not doing much more than murmur.

Thunder Brewing

But it will be different when the republicans attempt to make their first stab at a come-back in the congressional elections of next year. And the democrats know it. Those Washington political observers who long ago formed a healthy admiration of Mr. Roosevelt as a politician are pointing to a paragraph in his "second report" to the country recently as an illustration of what he expects.

"The only thing that has been happening," said the President, "has been (for congress) to emigrate the President as the agency to carry out certain of the purposes of congress. This was constitutional and in keeping with the best American tradition."

It is only necessary to glance over the record of the present congress to see where the republicans will look for their campaign thunder. The discretionary or permissive authority conferred on the President by congress is impressive. And before the special session is over these powers will be increased.

There's the emergency banking act, for example. Congress clearly assigned authority to the President in this bill that it usually keeps for itself.

The farm relief bill containing as it does the Thomas amendment for inflation of the currency is another.

A Lengthening List

Then there is the economy act, carrying with it presidential authority to make vast reductions in payments to veterans, government employes as well as abolition and reorganization of different federal agencies.

The bill creating the so-called "conservation corps" and the arms embargo are others.

Also, there is the bill to regulate the railroads of the country, the bill to stimulate, mobilize and regulate industry and the Tennessee valley improvement act.

And there may be others enacted such as presidential power to adjust tariffs, make trade agreements and negotiate on war debts.

Republican campaign orators see all of these as fertile sources which to draw material for their blasts.

Final Rehearsal for Boy Scout Show

Finishing touches to the fine minstrel program given by St. Mary's Boy Scouts Sunday afternoon for the children of the school and a number of adults, will be added at a rehearsal tonight in preparation for the two big performances in St. Mary's Hall Thursday and Friday evenings at 8:15.

Those who saw the show, which is in the form of a Mardi Gras, pronounced it one of the best ever put on by the Scouts who stage such a production annually. Every one of the cast did exceptionally well, bringing credit to themselves and to those who trained them. Ted Riccobono, former organist at Reade's Kingston Theatre, accompanies the show as director of musical selections. The chorus was trained by the Misses Cecilia and Marguerite Healy and Margaret Feeney and Miss Ottilia Riccobono had charge of instructing the dancers.

Decorations for the Mardi Gras follow one of the most novel schemes that ever enhanced the school hall. They were planned and painted under the direction of Zeke Boss, Miss T. Long and Robert Kilfoyle. They also arranged the stage setting with materials rented from a theatrical agency in New York.

Comments about the show by those who have seen it indicate capacity audiences on both Thursday and Friday. The school hall will be open an hour or so earlier than show time to enable those wishing a close-up of the performance to get choice seats.

Mt. Tremper Grange Celebrates Birthday

Mt. Tremper May 22.—On Friday, May 19, Mt. Tremper Grange held its regular meeting and at the same time celebrated two birthdays, the 60th birthday of the New York State Grange and the 13th birthday of Mt. Tremper Grange.

It was announced that the next meeting will be set aside as memorial meeting, when members will offer a prayer in memory of those brothers and sisters who have died during the year. Those who have been buried in the vicinity, their graves will be visited by a committee and a flower will be placed on it. Brother E. Gardner was asked to perform this duty.

Plans are being made to hold a Grange Field Day. The idea was accepted very enthusiastically, as it will give all the members and their families a day's outing.

When all the reports and communications were taken care of, all was set for the lecturer's hour, under the able direction of the north lecturer, Sister L. Zanner. The hour was opened with the singing of "Auld Lang Syne," in commemoration of the 60th anniversary of the New York State Grange. The lecturer spoke a few words on State Grange activities.

The hall was beautifully decorated with bouquets of flowers, which gave it most fitting setting for the celebration which followed.

The lights were lowered, and Sister Ruckert came into the hall with a large birthday cake, well lighted up with candles. This cake was iced very ornamentally, for which the Grange showed its appreciation to Mr. Scholl, the baker and donor, by sending him a vote of thanks.

Sister Iola Riseley and Brother Waldo Boerker were the only two charter members present, and they were given the honor of blowing out the lighted candles.

A framed picture of the Grange's first master, the late Brother John Davidson, was given to Sister Zauner to present to the Grange. They all voted to accept it and it was promptly hung on the wall in the place of honor, next to the charter, by the worthy master, Frank Carle.

Brother Boerker was giving a rising vote of thanks for securing this picture for the Grange. Then he was asked to tell what he knew of the origin of the Mt. Tremper Grange, where it originated, and who was responsible for its existence. He told the following story:

"In the fall of 1919, a meeting was held in the school house at Mink Hollow, near Lake Hill, to discuss the improving of certain roads in the town of Woodstock.

"The meeting was well attended and one of those present suggested it would be a fine thing for that community to start a Grange. He told of the wonderful things the Granges were doing throughout the country. Brother Boerker attended this meeting and became interested and thought it a fine thing for Mt. Tremper to have, so he brought the idea to the attention of John Davidson, Wilson Riseley, John Gardner, Nole Van Wagoner and the Rev. Mr. Blanchard, then minister of the Reformed Church in Mt. Tremper. It was through their efforts the people became interested in Grange organization.

"A few months had passed before enough interest was aroused, then Brother Boerker wrote a letter to the Farm Bureau manager, Mr. Cochrane, asking how to go about starting the Grange. He forwarded the letter to the county Grange deputy, Charles R. Tabor, of Milton, N. Y., and he wrote a letter explaining just how to go about it. The letter was dated January 12, 1920.

"With this information we went ahead with our plans. The Rev. Mr. Blanchard offered us the use of the church hall as a meeting place (otherwise Mt. Tremper would be without a Grange, as there was no other place available).

"The notices were posted, and at the first meeting on May 5, 1920, there were 50 people present.

"E. L. Chase, then manager of the Ulster County Farm Bureau, told all he knew about the value and purpose of the Grange and encouraged us in trying to organize one. After hearing what he had to say the following people made speeches favoring the organization of the Grange: Mrs. W. Riseley, John Davidson, A. DeSilva, J. Zauner, George Kinsey, B. Moe, Nole Van Wagoner, the Rev. R. P. Ingersoll and W. Boerker. The Rev. R. P. Ingersoll acted as chairman and W. R. Boerker as secretary.

"After hearing the result of this meeting Mr. Tabor came to organize us on May 15, 1920.

"Brother John Davidson made all the Grange furniture, which we can feel justly proud of, as in it he shows his skilled workmanship. He donated this to the Grange, and in the same true Grange spirit Brother J. Gardner called for and delivered it to the hall with his wagon and team.

"Shortly after being organized, Past Master J. W. Weaver of Clintondale Grange and his team, installed the officers.

"Much credit is also due to members of the New Paltz Grange for coming up to help us initiate new members and set us right on Grange affairs, also to the members of the Grange who worked very hard to increase the membership the first few years of the Grange."

A few lines were written to commemorate the founding of the Grange.

The lecturer's hour was well filled with celebration, but time was taken to read a few lines on centralization of rural schools. These quotations were from five districts, where schools have been centralized. They all say they would not return to the old system and that the new system does not increase their taxes, as many of those opposed to the plan state.

The meeting was well attended and there were about 15 to 20 guests admitted during and after lecturer's hour.

After an enjoyable social evening the meeting adjourned shortly after midnight.

The next meeting will be held on Friday, June 2, at 8 o'clock standard time, when three new members will receive the obligation of the first and second degree.

The LAW And The RACKETEERS

No. 2—Fighting The Gangsters On New Battlefronts.

By NOEL THORNTON.

New York, (AP).—Federal and state officers, pushing their attack against gangsters, are encountering a changing battlefront in the ranks of racketeers.

Not only have new leaders thrust forward to direct this criminal element in its mulcting of billions of dollars from its victims, but they are carrying their "conspiracy to coerce" tactics into many new fields little touched heretofore.

Began With Vote-Controlling

According to newspaper accounts in the early part of this century, modern racketeering began with the organizing of strong-arm headlums to control votes by threats. The same methods were used to extort bounty from the trucking industry, and during the past decade the idea flourished in illegal beer and liquor traffic.

Liquor racketeering quickly blossomed into a criminal dynasty of big and easy money, with gang czars in New York, Chicago and Detroit branching out their activities until they became national in scope.

'Public Enemies' Listed

Three years ago the internal revenue department took emphatic cognizance of this menace by launching an unrelenting attack at the one weak spot of the racketeers' armor—their habit of evading income tax payments.

Lists of "public enemies" were named. This barrage had its first results in Chicago when Al and Ralph Capone and the Guzik brothers, Sam and Jack, were sent to prison.

Meantime a group of wholesale inter-gang murders together with subsequent convictions broke the power of the Purple Gang which controlled the Detroit area.

Searching For Others

When the income tax sleuths moved into New York, they discovered that gangster killings had eliminated several of the ones they had intended grilling. In quick succession bullets wiped out Vincent "Baby Face" Coll, Larry Fay, Jack "Legs" Diamond and Vannie Higgins.

Now the federal investigators have arrested Waxie Gordon and are making efforts to find Dutch Schultz, both of whom were suddenly missing from public circulation. Ownie Madden, another on their list, is in Sing Sing.

Of the list of "big shots" originally named by the government, only William Duffy, Ciro Terranova and George Demange, together with the missing Schultz and Gordon, remain prominent in New York's area.

Another recent addition to these ranks is Charley Phil Rosenberg, former bantamweight champion. He has just been sentenced to prison on a charge of using racketeering methods in the poultry markets.

A Cleaning Racketeer.

In Chicago, the old Capone organization is reputed to be controlled by Murray Humphreys, a dapper young man with marcelled hair and a power in the cleaning and dyeing industry. At the moment Chicago detectives are unable to find him in his usual haunts.

William "Three-Fingered-Jack" White, who is now appealing a one-year prison sentence, and William "Klondike" O'Donnell, who had a disorderly conduct charge dismissed in February, are said to be two others who share Humphreys' power.

Those current leaders are the ones receiving especial attention from the various forces investigating racketeer activities in new fields—which include milk, fish and poultry trades; cleaning, dyeing and laundry industries; kidnaping, "outlaw" labor unions and abuses of the new 3.2 beer regulations.

RACKETS—NEW AND OLD

The Old:

Beer and liquor.
Vote control.
Transportation.

The New:

Labor unions.
Kidnaping.
Legal 3.2 beer.
Arrest substitutes.
Transportation.
Cleaning and dyeing.
Laundries.
Milk, fish and poultry.

Racketeers, no longer confining themselves to the liquor field, are spreading into many other lines of activity, including the poultry, the laundry and the cleaning and dyeing business. Officials combating racketeering and gangsters in New York have arrested Waxie Gordon and are seeking Dutch Schultz. In Chicago William "Three-Fingered Jack" White and William "Klondike" O'Donnell are said to be among those controlling the old Capone organization.

Is racketeering changing with the times? Is the law making headway against it? This is the second of three articles discussing these and related questions.

Pupils Taught Juggling

Deportment is taught by juggling and balancing feats at Pangwern college in Cheltenham, England. One exercise for girls is to stand on one foot on a pedestal while juggling three balls and balancing two oranges on a plate on the head.

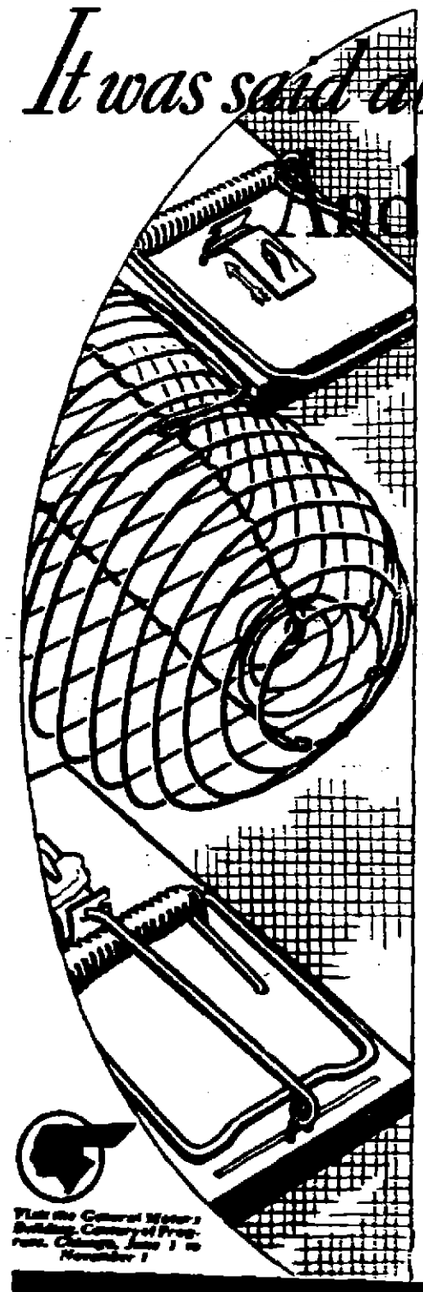
Ri-or Mortis

Rigor mortis means stiffening of the body and usually occurs from one to seven hours after death, due to the hardening of the muscular tissues in consequence of the coagulation of the myosinogen and paramyosinogen; it disappears after from one to six days.

Ring's Many Functions

Rings have been made for all purposes—as love tokens, as weapons, as inoculators of poison, as emblems of friendship and of authority and as ornaments. Moreover, they have been made of all kinds of metals from iron to platinum.

It was said about a mousetrap



And Now it is True About a Car!

Remember the old saying, "Make a better mousetrap ... and the world will ..." and so on? Well, after all these years, there does seem to be something to it.

Pontiac sales are ahead of last year—and still growing

You will admit that, in a year like this, that means the car must have something. Something that people want.

Now, Pontiac does offer a lot for the money. And its price is low.

Pontiac gives a big, beautiful package of Balanced Value.

What does that mean? Simply that Pontiac gives you Economy—but not at the expense of other qualities. It gives also Durability, Comfort, Safety, Performance and Appearance. It gives all-round Balanced Value for the owner.

It means that the car wears evenly through tens of thousands of miles of use. And at the end of two or three years it gives extra dividends in the way of higher trade-in value. Fisher bodies have Fisher No Draft Ventilation. Pontiac is a typical General Motors Value—a good car to buy.

Read the Free Booklet

Head Tax First Imposed on Immigrants in 1882

The head tax has been imposed on immigrants since 1882, the first tax being only 50 cents. From 1907 to 1917 the amount of the tax was four dollars. The act of 1917, which went into effect on May 1 of that year, rendered Canadians subject to this head tax. Most of our laws regarding passports date from the World war, though the secretary of state was empowered by the Act of 1866 to issue passports. Up to the war time, however, it was unusual for an American citizen to take out a passport to visit a European country unless he were going to Russia, Turkey or one of the Balkan countries where there was likely to be difficulty. Even in 1900 the State department issued a general statement advising all Americans intending to travel abroad, outside of British dominions to provide themselves with passports before leaving the United States; those visiting Russia or Turkey were required to have the passports countersigned by a Russian or Turkish consular official.

"Much Ado About Nothing"

A distinguished clergyman desiring to inform his mother of an interesting domestic event, sent her a postcard containing the following directions:

From 12 words please take, and then the following affix:
From Genesis, the 25th, verse 17, no more.
Then add verse 26 of Kings, book second, chapter four:
The last two verses, chapter first, first Book of Samuel
And you will learn what on that day your loving son befell.

The following is the first passage: "For unto us a child is born, unto us a son is given."—Exchange.

His Share

The children's dinner was in progress. They had been provided with a nice fat chicken.

"What part did you have?" asked one little boy of his neighbor.

"The wishbone," was the reply.

"I had a leg," put in another child.

One after another they explained the various parts.

Presently little Jackie, who so far had not spoken a word, held up a skewer and exclaimed:

"Look, I've got the perch!"

Three Brass Balls

Originally three brass balls were the symbol of the great Lombard family of the Medici, and came to their present use because the Lombards were the first recognized money lenders in England. The balls are said to have originally represented three gilded pills, in token of medicine, the early profession of the Medici. Another story is that an early Medici killed a giant, one Mugello, and adopted the three balls of his victim's mace as his own crest.—Answers Magazine.

Pays to Be Plowman

WILLIAMS LAKES TO HOLD ANOTHER SWIM CAMPAIGN.

Swimming, which proved so popular in Kingston and vicinity last year, will no doubt receive an additional impetus this summer, for William J. Brooks, the popular swimming coach and instructor of the Williams Lakes Swimming Club, will again direct the activities of the Binnewater organization.

Mr. Brooks has just finished a season of notable coaching triumphs in the field of indoor swimming. He has successfully coached another Rider College swimming team through a difficult schedule. During the winter the Trenton, N. J., College boys annexed victories over New York University, Fordham, George Washington University and Connecticut Aggies.

Last year 64 people in and around Kingston were taught how to swim by Mr. Brooks in the "Learn-to-swim" campaign conducted at Williams Lakes. More than 200 people received individual instruction.

No definite statement has been released by Coach Brooks of his plans for the summer but it is said he will conduct another "Learn-to-swim" campaign for those who did not take advantage of last summer's instruction.

The Williams Lakes Swimming Club announces it will again sponsor a series of competitive swimming meets and bring to this locality some of the most famous stars of the aquatic world.

Work is going ahead full speed at Williams Lakes to complete the extensive improvements to the beach and pavilion in anticipation of hosts of Kingstonians and vacationists at its daily swims and Saturday night dances. During the spring months a large addition has been built on to the pavilion. The beach has been extended and improved to accommodate the anticipated large crowds.

AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY TO EXHIBIT IN AUGUST

At a special meeting of the directors of the Ulster County Agricultural Society on Monday evening, it was decided to hold an exhibit and fair at the New State Armory on North Manor avenue on August 23, 24 and 25. This exhibit will replace the old county fair usually held at Ellenville, and will be much similar, but more extensive, than the one held at Forsyth Park last year.

In addition to the agricultural and home-making exhibits, Grange display, cattle exhibit, etc., committees were appointed to work on a horse show, pet show, Little Country Theatre, automobile display, commercial exhibits and other features. Judging from the enthusiasm of those present, this should be one of the largest county agricultural events in many years. An executive committee consisting of Fred DuBois, E. W. Hathaway, Sam Bernstein and John Beatty was elected to have full control of the numerous arrangement details.

In the absence of Fred DuBois of New Paltz, president of the Agricultural Society, John Beatty of Kingston, the first vice-president, presided. Others present at the meeting were: E. W. Hathaway, of Kingston, secretary-treasurer; Clyde Wonderly of Kingston, Sam Bernstein, Jr., Kingston; Henry Schroeder, Saugerties; E. Gordon Jansen, Ellenville; John Dunlop, Ellenville; I. C. Barnes, New Paltz; A. E. Jansen, New Paltz; C. J. Hepworth, Milton; Harry Beatty, Kingston; Miss Evelyn Nance, Kingston; Albert Kurdt, Kingston, and Mr. Bromley of the Tokalon Kennels at Woodstock.

ENTERTAINMENT TONIGHT AT BETHANY CHAPEL

At 8 o'clock this evening the G. C. G. Society of Bethany Mission will present an evening of delightful entertainment to the members and friends of the chapel. The entertainment will consist of 10 musical and dramatic numbers of a humorous nature. The entertainment will be presented by talented people of this city and a number of folks experienced in dramatics from out of the city.

The G. C. G. is anxious to have a large audience greet these entertainers because of their kindness in coming to the mission, and because the society is endeavoring to build up an effective fund for its hospital work.

The entertainment will start promptly at 8 o'clock and no admission will be charged. A silver offering will be taken during the evening.

The public is cordially invited to attend the entertainment.

ASCENSION DAY AT REDEEMER CHURCH

Ascension Day will be observed at the Lutheran Church of the Redeemer Thursday when a church service will be held at 7:45 p. m. The pastor, the Rev. O. E. Brandorff, will preach on the topic, "If Christ Had Not Ascended." The service will be about an hour in length.

No further evening services will be held until the fall.

Married Men Take Single Boys Over

The married men employed by the Central Hudson Gas & Electric Corporation defeated the single men in a baseball game Monday evening by the score of 12-6. The winning battery was Tom Morrissey and "Dutch" Craw, the losing one, Ray Crackenbush and Earl Tongue. Walt Mayes surprised the single boys by stealing home for one of the winning runs. Tommy Reynolds and J. W. Hinkley, two players expected to star for the single men, did not show up for the game, disappointing those who were anxious to see them display some of the form they are reputed to have had when they played collegiate ball.

STOPPING DIPHTHERIA

New York had a celebration the other day. The millionth child in that city immunized against diphtheria since 1916 received its inoculation in the presence of health officials, doctors and several hundred men and women interested in medicine, social welfare and public health. After the indoor rite came a health pageant in the park attended by 5,000 children and adults. There were folk dances and speeches in honor of the occasion.

Toxin-anti-toxin was first put into the hands of physicians in 1916 and immunization work was begun. A definite campaign of education and inoculation began in 1929. In the first three years of that campaign, it is estimated that there were 17,000 fewer cases of diphtheria and 1,400 fewer deaths from the disease than there would have been without the immunization.

Today there are 700,000 children in New York city who have not been immunized. With the health pageant as a starter, the campaign is to be pushed harder to get these 700,000 examined and those who are not naturally immune inoculated. There are free clinics where the work may be done if parents are unable to pay for it. There will be opportunities for examinations and treatments in the public schools. The goal is to drive diphtheria out of the city. It seems to be one quite possible to achieve with popular support. There should be a similar goal in every community.

PARTNERS IN MISFORTUNE.

That was a pretty good speech Ramsay MacDonald made the other day, at a Pilgrims' dinner in England, to an audience of mingled Britons and Americans, when he spoke of the two countries as "partners in misfortune." It is an apt phrase, and he made the most of it. The gist of his remarks was that, being in the same boat, we ought to pull together for peace and prosperity. Wherein he was right. He went pretty far, even for him, in his call for friendly cooperation. He said:

The cardinal point of British policy is to get active, cooperative relationship with the United States, in everything which relates to the peace of the world, prosperity and human progress.

I am sure Mr. Roosevelt would associate himself with this statement—that I would like Great Britain to get into such relationship with the United States that we can quarrel, dispute and disagree, and still trust the confidence we have in each other to remain absolutely unimpaired.

We really do that pretty well as matters stand. John Bull pulls Uncle Sam's whiskers, and Sam pokes John in the stomach, but they generally end by going off arm in arm. The Revolutionary War was a long time ago. Our quarrels are really family affairs. Like sensible families, when it comes to a crisis, we stop telling the truth about each other and stand together against the world.

COST OF PERSECUTION.

According to the director of one of the great German dye industries, "certain political features" have hurt all branches in the country's industrial life. He refers obviously to the persecution of the Jews and other extreme policies of the Nazi government against classes of citizens incurring their enmity.

The boycott against the Jews inevitably aroused an anti-German boycott not merely among the world's Jews but among millions of others who love fair play and think unfair discrimination should be punished. Because the German nation has appeared to sanction such conduct in its government, there has been a prejudice aroused against German goods almost comparable to that which prevailed in war time.

Thus trade amounting to hundreds of millions of marks has been lost in Europe. In America, too, the demand for German products of almost every kind has fallen. The great machinery industries have been especially hard hit. A sort of boycott has arisen against the annual Leipzig fair for next January. This effective form of protest may do more to modify harsh Hitler policies than anything else. The most fiery political zealot is likely to calm down when he is driving away business, because that means losing power.

PAIN

When you get a pain anywhere in the body it is only natural that you should take some medicine to get relief; aspirin, phenacetine, caffeine, acetanilid or even codeine.

Physicians now agree that if the pain is very severe or prolonged, more harm is done to the nervous system by trying to endure it than by taking some medicine to relieve it.

What is pain anyway?

But what is pain and why do you ever have pain?

One definition is that "Pain is Nature's protest"; Nature's protest against something which is not going right or properly in your body.

If you take medicine to relieve the pain you are, in a sense, like an ostrich that hides its head in the sand, because your common sense tells you that the pain is due to something wrong, and the wrong should be righted. Nature by causing the pain is protesting against the wrong, and warning you in a very pointed way that the cause should be found, and, if possible, removed.

What is my point?

That if you can possibly bear the pain until you can see your physician and give him a chance to find the cause, you may avoid some serious ailment, which, although present for some time, is only just beginning to make its presence known by causing pain at some particular point.

By learning from you the kind of pain, its exact position, how it comes on, how long it lasts, what aggravates it, what eases it, your physician is most likely to diagnose or figure out just what has gone wrong.

By taking medicine to relieve it, all the symptoms are hidden and he may consider the condition considerably worse or considerably better than it really is.

Even an ordinary "stomach ache" relieved by baking soda, or a pain in the intestine relieved by castor oil, may really be Nature's warning of appendicitis, and any medicine or food if taken may prove fatal.

So don't hurry your physician into giving you some pain killer. Give him a chance to learn the cause of the pain, to learn why Nature is protesting so vigorously.

THE FEAST OF WEEKS
WEDNESDAY, MAY 31.

Shabuoth, the Feast of Weeks, falls this year on Wednesday, May 31. Orthodox Jewry observes the festival on the following day as well. Its name is derived from the fact that the Mosaic legislation does not prescribe the date of this festival as being definitely on a particular day, or a particular month, which is the case with the other festivals, but instead simply states that seven full weeks are to be counted from the time the Omer (a measure of grain as an offering) is brought. Hence, the name the "Festival of Weeks," and also the name "Pentecost," meaning "fiftieth," since the festival is seven weeks or the fiftieth day after the second day of Passover, so fixed by Rabbinic tradition.

Like the other two so-called Pilgrim Festivals, Passover and Tabernacles, the Festival of Weeks was originally related to the agricultural life of ancient Israel. Its destination sometimes as the Feast of "First Fruits," as well as some of the features of its celebration, are described in the Bible. The further fact that the Book of Ruth, with its harvest scenes, is the special scroll for reading on Shabuoth, indicates clearly the agricultural character of the festival.

However, this aspect of the festival has become altogether secondary to its historical significance, since tradition makes Shabuoth the anniversary of the Revelation at Sinai when Israel assumed its sacred mission as the priest-people and holy nation. In keeping with this deeper meaning of the festival, Shabuoth has been chosen by the modern American Synagogue as the most appropriate occasion for the impressive ceremonial of confirmation whereby the boys and girls in Israel renew the vow of Horeb and pledge their love and loyalty to the covenant of their fathers.

The White Cockatoo

by Mignon G. Eberhart

SYNOPSIS: Sue Tully has broken with Frederic Tully, who has come to meet her and watch with her the taken that will admit Sue to her next rehearsal. She has broken with Gretha Lovachkan, also, who seems strangely sympathetic to Francis. Then she starts up the stair of the old Francis hotel where murder and theft have been and for days Jim Sundeen suddenly points ahead at Francis' determine Lorna Lorn, who has volunteered to accompany Sue. Entering Sue's room for a worried talk, Sundeen sees the wardrobe door quiver.

Chapter 44

SUE "DISAPPEARS"

I FLUNG across the room, my own revolver in one hand. In that second the door had stopped its brief motion and was firm, though I'd heard no noise.

"Come out!" I said.

There was not a sound inside the wardrobe. I started to fling open the door, and the door resisted. I pulled and exerted all my force, and it still resisted. It was during that moment that I was conscious of hearing a voice in the hall, but only faintly.

The key was not in the lock. Was it possible that the thing was locked from the inside? At least, I could not get it open, and there was someone inside the wardrobe.

I glanced about for a chair or table I could swing at the door. And in that glance I saw that Sue was gone. I dropped the chair and was at the door. I was in the corridor. Sue was not there.

I tried to call to her: Sue—Sue. I believe I did call out, but my voice must have been husky and strained, for although she was very near—she said afterward that she did not hear me, did not even know that there was someone in the wardrobe.

I ran down the hall, past Mrs. Byng's door, and into the intersecting corridor. And then, with a policeman trying to detain me—and I daresay I looked rather mad—I ran back to the corridor that passed Sue's room.

And there was Sue in the very act of opening the door of Mrs. Byng's room and coming from it into the hall, talking contentedly with Mrs. Byng in the room beyond as she did so.

I stopped abruptly. The relief was so great to see her there, not a hair on her head touched, that I felt actually a little dizzy and queer.

"There you are," I said breathlessly.

She looked at me unconcernedly as I came nearer.

"Mrs. Byng opened her door and spoke to me—asked me to step in her room a moment." She saw, I suppose, something of my feeling in my face, for she added quickly and anxiously: "I thought you heard her speak.—What is it?"

"There's someone in the wardrobe in your room," I said rapidly, recovering myself. "Tell this policeman, will you?"

Her eyes darkened with fright as she spoke quickly to the man. His own face took on suddenly an acutely uneasy look, but he had the grace to turn rapidly toward her room, and we both pressed through the door. I crossed to the wardrobe and pulled at the door.

AND it swung readily open.

There was no shot. There was no motion. There was no sound. There was only a sort of vacant space where Sue's gowns had been pushed back on their hangers.

Well, I knew what I'd seen. I knew the wardrobe door had not budged under my hand, though I'd pulled hard and it could not have been stuck. But the policeman didn't believe me or didn't want to believe me, and in either case the effect would have been the same. And by that time I didn't see myself that there was much use starting a search for the person who had beat such a hasty and skilled retreat during those few moments when I'd been in the main corridor.

But I was interested to note that the wardrobe lock actually did go clear through into the inside, and the key was on the inside. Certainly no place for a key in a wardrobe. I said finally to Sue:

"You and Mrs. Byng go on down to the lounge to tea. I'll go with you to the stairway and watch until you are safe in the lounge. Promise me to stay near the others." It ran through my mind that it was in the very lounge that little Marcel had been killed. But I had been the only other in the room, then—I and the cockatoo.

The policeman, relieved, vanished. Mrs. Byng stalked beside us, looking for all the world like a tall and very untidy bolster. As we emerged into the galleried space I glanced over it down into the lounge. Grethe and Francis and Lorn were still there, with Marianne's black hair shining near the tea table.

Sue followed my glance and lifted her eyebrows inquiringly, and I shook my head. Yet it didn't seem possible that it had been Lovachkan in that wardrobe.

"Later," I said rapidly to Sue, referring to my wish to learn just what Francis had said. She understood me, but she looked troubled. Mrs. Byng passed a little ahead of her at the top of the stairs, and in the rustle of that lady's numerous garments Sue leaned toward me and said quickly:

"Soon. It's important." She started to follow Mrs. Byng, looked back at me, hesitated, and then added with a kind of catch in her breath. "Be very careful."

Then she ran lightly down the stairs, and I watched her shining bright hair.

I went down the service stairs which led from beyond Marianne's room, and straight through to the ground-floor storerooms of the north wing.

I knew that these storerooms had been searched, not once, but several times, by the police. I knew that their only connection with the floor above them was by way of that narrow passage and up the service stairway. I knew that they were practically unused and that neither the police nor Lorn had connected them in any way with the strange affairs that had taken place in and near my own room.

THE rooms were large, dark, and silent. I gave the first few rooms, which were bare and empty, only a glance and went farther along to the room which lay directly under the White Salon and under my own room. One large room stretched shadowily along what I judged was the full length of both the upper rooms, and here I managed to open a shutter.

The ceilings, unfinished and with rough beams, were very low. The pipes for the furnace which presumably supplied the upper floor of the north wing ran openly through these rooms, and I looked with some interest at the spot where they passed into the radiators of my own room and to the White Salon.

But it was among a group of barrels in a corner of the room that I found what I found; something Lorn would have immediately discovered had he given my statements any weight in his own mind. In Lorn's mind I played an entirely different rôle than that of investigator.

Not that the thing I found was incriminating to anyone. But it did go far to prove a possibility that was in my mind. For it was an eiderdown, a new, little-used eiderdown covered with red silk, and it was wadded up and thrust into the bottom of one of the barrels which was then turned upside down.

For some time I stood there holding the thing in my hands, following a terse train of thoughts. Sue's abductor had been, she thought, slender—lean. Someone had used an eiderdown in that room very recently. The odor of tobacco smoke very late one night had floated up through the hole in the ceiling where the heating pipes went through.

But could that strange sigh we had heard so clearly that very morning in the White Salon just above have come from such a distance? The tobacco smoke had been not quite tangible; it might have been not quite tangible; it might have been explained by only a strangely shifting current of air. But that sigh had been wholly tangible. Someone near us had sighed, and there was no one near.

But I dared not linger too long in that empty, rapidly darkening storeroom. I had seen, I thought, what was to be seen. I didn't like the feeling of the place, with the dusk increasing in its corners and crawling steadily nearer me; and with the approach of night the wind was beginning to whisper and murmur and wail around the old dark building. And there was the urgent matter of Sue's token.

I made my way back not without qualms, for during my short stay in the cavernous storerooms twilight had fallen with the complete suddenness of winter, and the whole place was a hollow, black stillness with shadows that seemed to move, and my footsteps echoed against the old walls.

Dramatically, tomorrow, the token itself comes back into the reckoning.

Dogs Are Dogs

Although there are almost 200 distinct breeds of dogs in the world, no one of these can be considered a separate species, for any dog may breed with any other dog and produce fertile offspring. So whether a dog be a tiny creature no more than six inches high and weighing in the neighborhood of two pounds, or a 200-pounder standing nearly three feet tall; whether its coat be shaggy or short haired, and regardless of its hue, it will have the same general characteristics and body structure of all dogdom.

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS—By John Hix

Leonardo da Vinci, great Italian artist, scholar and philosopher, exercised his genius in almost every field of learning—he was a master painter, sculptor, architect, musician, mechanician, engineer and natural philosopher.

Strange as it seems Leonardo was at once a great artist and scientist. His works of art are well known throughout the world—the Mona Lisa, the Last Supper—but his scientific discoveries, because he studied and observed for his own love of knowledge, have not been popularly credited to him.

To Galileo goes credit for first discovery of the law of the pendulum, to Bacon development of logic, to Newton for the law of gravitation, and to Harvey for discovery of the circulation of blood in the human body.

Sir Sidney Colvin, of the British Museum, concerning the scientific research made by Leonardo da Vinci, says:

"In science he was the first among modern men to set himself most of those problems which unnumbered searchers of later generations have labored severally or in concert to solve.

"A hundred years before Bacon, say those who can judge best, he showed a firmer grasp of the principles of experimental science than Bacon showed, fortified by a far wider range of actual experiment and observation. Galileo, Bacon, Newton, Harvey—he knew what each of them would one day discover. He was Watt's precursor, only he meant steam to project a missile from a cannon; experts say that, had he had at his disposal some power like petrol, he would have completed his mechanical aviation."

Reservoir Country Twenty Years Ago

Shokan, May 22—The month of May, 1913, was filled with interesting events taking place, both within the taking line of the reservoir, and outside of the city's marginal strip where eight new settlements were rapidly being peopled by those residents of northeastern Hurley and central Olive who had elected to start life anew on their native soil. Still other residents were removing to Kingston and other points in Ulster county, while a number of the Board of Water Supply engineers were taking temporary possession of vacated homes in order to remain near their work on the various construction phases of the big waterworks project.

On May 11, the last services were held in the old Shokan Dutch Reformed Church, a stately structure standing on a bank high above the Esopus creek, near the center of the village. At this farewell service in the church, the congregation, whose forebears had founded the organization more than 100 years before, listened to an address by the Rev. Henry W. Brink, their pastor, who spoke feelingly of the old associations. In the neighboring community of West Hurley, a similar event took place on the 18th of the month, as the Reformed people assembled in the building which was soon to be razed preparatory to moving the materials to Vandale for a new house of worship. At about the same time a legal action was brought by New York city against the trustees of the Glenford M. E. Church, in the matter of the old church building which Winston & Company had given them, and which John Crispell with several yoke of oxen had successfully moved to its new site on the north boulevard. The city had made an award of $5,000 for the church buildings and land.

The burning of Judge Henry L. Winchell's creamery at Brown's and the appellate hearing of Mrs. Emma Cudney's famous ginseng plantation claim were other stellar happenings in May which have already been mentioned in these columns. The new Ulster & Delaware Railroad cut at Glenford at this time was practically completed, much to the relief of the residents of that section, who during long months of intensive cut and fill work amongst the rocky strata, had been all but deafened by the outlandish racket made by screeching locomotive whistles, the crashing of power shovel buckets and a dozen other rasping noises incident to the progress of the work. For weeks the cries of "Fleo!" and nerve-wracking blasts had annoyed the good Methodist people worshipping at their newly located church in Glenford.

On the 21st, a committee of engineers came to the reservoir country to look over the boulevards situation with a view to making a report on the proper materials to be used in paving the 40 miles of graded roads surrounding the marginal strip, together with those running along the top of the dykes. These experts on the 23rd expressed the opinion that the boulevards should be paved with a bituminous material instead of brick set in a concrete bed as previously planned. The brick pavement was unnecessary as well as too expensive, the engineers found, though they favored the idea of using it on the dam and dykes. Shortly after this inspection trip, C. E. Raynor, one of the resident Board of Water Supply engineers, received a broken nose and other painful injuries when he lost his balance and fell 25 feet from the new bridge which was being built across the Esopus creek at Boiceville. Dr. B. B. Bloom, who was making preparations for removal to his new home in Wallkill, attended Mr. Raynor at the latter's Shokan residence.

Business claims were occupying most of the attention of the Ashokan commissions in the spring of '13, practically all of the property claims having been heard and awards duly made. On the 23rd, Judge Hasbrouck, in sending back to Commission No. 1 for retrial several claims in which awards had been made to residents of the reservoir section, held that in determining the value of an established business, the business should be charged with the use of the real estate, use of personal property and value of the services rendered by owners of the business and members of their families. Claims thus set aside under Judge Hasbrouck's ruling included those of Frank and DeForest Bishop, boarding house keepers at Tongore; George Pierson, storekeeper at Olive Branch; Albert Brown, whose boarding house stood near the present aerator; Mathilda Barton, boarding house, and Dr. J. D. W. Dumond of Ashokan for physician's services.

On the 24th, Commissioners Ernst, Shea and Merritt filed a report of awards in the Hoornbeek-Patchen and Millard Davis claims against the city for business losses at Boiceville, the mill village situated about where located. Awards totaling $65,175 this, one of the most complicated in the history of Ashokan condemnation proceedings. There were several parcels, riparian rights, etc., and the properties were in several different ownerships. The mere taking of testimony in these claims occupied one year and covered 5,200 pages. Another claim on the calendar during May was that of the Standard Oil Company for $1,907.63 which came up before Commissioners Roche, Patterson and Irwin on the 28th. The Standard's modest claim was for loss of business and expense of removal of plant from land near Zadoc P. Boice's sawmill along the Bakeman brook. The company had rented the land from Mr. Boice from 1907 until the time when they were compelled to abandon the plant early in 1913.

On Saturday, May 31, residents of the Ashokan were saddened by news of the drowning of Kenneth Day, a 12-year-old lad, who lived at the Brown Station construction camp with his grandfather, Engineer Pyne of the B. W. S. staff. Young Day while on a fishing expedition with two chums fell from a ledge in the Esopus creek gorge a short distance below Bishop's Falls at a time when the water was very high from recent rains. Kenneth was one of the brightest boys in the big camp and his tragic death brought sorrow to many persons here. Another death on the 31st was that of Richard Van Deyo, 64, at Wallkill. A native of New Paltz, Mr. Deyo at one time was engaged in the tanning business at Shokan village with David McKinstry. Old timers, such as William Dibbie of Port Ewen; Lewis Shaw of Lake Katrine; Elwyn Winchell of Shokan, and others will probably recall having known Mr. Deyo in the younger days.

The building of the great reservoir, then rapidly nearing completion, was beginning to attract visitors in increasing numbers, as the fame of this Herculean engineering project spread afar. Students of engineering especially were interested in viewing the camp and works, and of the groups coming here for inspection purposes, one of the most prominent was that comprising a party of West Point instructors and seniors who arrived at Brown Station in company with a number of Kingston residents as guests of James A. Winston, contractor for the main dam. The object of the West Pointers' visit was to see for themselves the finest engineering work on the most gigantic scale then under construction in this country. A luncheon was served in the dining room of the contractors at which Judge A. T. Clearwater officiated as toastmaster. Mrs. Winston sent a telegram of greetings from Carterville, Va. The guests from Kingston included John D. Schoonmaker, Edward Coykendall, Everett Fowler and Judge Clearwater.

Of such, briefly, were the happenings in the reservoir country 20 years ago. The work here had been going on for a little over five and one-half year and it was estimated that it would require at least another year to round out the vast project and make of the reservoir the thing of beauty and marvel of engineering science which it is today.

Light Fabrics in Dark Colors

New York—With black linen all the rage for town wear, it seems logical to expect cool cottons to darken, and to find women wearing black and navy and brown dotted Swiss, and what have you? Can it be an economy measure? So many women dislike wearing resort colors in town that it seems quite likely this fad for dark-colored cottons and linens will go over in a big way.

Then, of course, there's red, again a good summer color. You have your choice of raspberry or currant and a score of other reds between. These are the two smartest shades, however. The Opera Ball, now a matter of almost ancient history, was planned to be attended in pink and purple dresses only, including, that is, the numerous shades between, or combinations of the two. Women did not remain true to their colors, however, and came in practically every color, and of course white. The publicity attendant on the ball, window displays and things of that character, have borne fruit. All shades of pink are very much worn, so are the lovely color combinations possible with the variegated pink and purple range. If you are partial to orchid and lavender, dahlia and violet, you will perhaps never find a better time to wear them.

We've talked a lot of dots—but that's because it does not seem possible to say everything there is to be said about them. Suit yourself as to their size—all dots are good, including our old friend dotted Swiss in self and contrasting dots. Here we show it in red, with white organdie fixings. If you are thoroughly up on your fashion lessons you will know that you are entitled to a cotton hat to wear with it, or to wear with anything you like, or a straw one, crisply bowed with organdie or trimmed in some way, perhaps with a piquant pleating of it.

You are also encouraged to wear cotton gloves and carry a cotton purse. The gloves are highly amusing, as you are sure to have discovered.

DID YOU KNOW THAT

Sleeved dresses for evening are emphasized in Paris reports, pronouncing the big sleeve with particular emphasis. Worth and Mirande do these dresses, expressed in "garden party" types.

Swagger coats are retained for summer, for evening wraps and separate white coats such as the ones by Worth, individualized by black trimming.

A number of semi-sheers are being used for dresses with matching jackets. One of them in particular is a general favorite. It is the fine line diagonal introduced for Palm Beach with such success.

"Sweet Little Buttercup"

Field flowers, a symbol of gay color effects in trimmings, have received the stamp of Paris and New York. The fact that their charm as a decoration is being recognized is discernable wherever a representative number of smart women assemble.

This pastoral turn of thought in the way of adding a gay bit to fashion is not only "in the hat," but it is very prominent in dress fashions. Mainbocher's field flower print probably may be held responsible for a great deal of this cultivation of the Maud Muller pose with the simple nosegay of poppy, buttercup and daisy.

Talks to parents

The City Child's Pets

By ALICE JUDSON PEALE

Pets are desirable for the child of kindergarten age as experience, as mental stimulation which leads to thoughtful questions and as a means of helping him happily to accept little responsibilities.

The child on the farm, of course, has no need of special pets since his environment naturally produces them at frequent intervals to his unbounded pleasure and edification. But the city child often has no idea about creatures other than humans, unless he has a few special pets of his own which he can observe daily.

A healthy, gentle playful dog is, of course, an ideal pet and the child is indeed fortunate whose parents will allow one about the house. But where there is no room for a dog there is at least room for a canary which well repays the trouble he causes in the delight the child has in him.

The canary, singing, eating and drinking, taking his bath and preening his feathers is a source of wonder and joy to every small child.

Gold fish are interesting to him, too; and there is always room for a bowl of these in his room. A good aquarium with three or four fish, different kinds of snails and a few tadpoles which will begin to turn into frogs will be endlessly interesting to the small child and virtually no trouble to care for.

Until the child is six or seven he should not be expected to take entire care of his pets. He will be only too glad to help or indeed do the whole job, when he thinks of it—but one cannot expect him to think of it every day week in, week out.

Gradually and more quickly than with less congenial tasks he will learn to carry this responsibility alone.

American Eagle on Coins

The American eagle was placed on the first coin issued by the United States in 1795. It was first adopted on the seal of the United States on June 20, 1782, against the protest of Benjamin Franklin, who regarded it as a Caesarian emblem and suggested the wild turkey as being more distinctively American.

SCIENTIST tells Screen Stars WHY this soap is such a wonderful aid in keeping skin YOUTHFUL

"LUX Toilet Soap actually contains precious elements skin itself has and must have to stay youthful," Scientist says!

Small wonder that this soap is used by 9 out of 10 screen stars —has been for years—to keep skin young looking!

FOR YEARS hundreds of Hollywood actresses have known WHAT Lux Toilet Soap does. That's why 686 out of 694 of the important movie actresses use this beauty soap regularly: It keeps their skin so soft . . . smooth . . . young looking!

The Secret of Youthful Skin

Now scientists tell why it does these things. Contained in this soap—they explain—are certain precious elements that skin itself has—and must have to stay young!

You're born with certain precious elements in your skin. Nature, herself, puts them there—in abundance, when skin is young. But little by little as the years go by, these precious elements are depleted . . . a gradual loss occurs. Almost imperceptibly, day by day, skin ages, loses its fresh smoothness . . . becomes rough . . . dry . . . old looking!

This Soap actually contains Precious Elements found in skin itself

Don't turn, discouraged, from your mirror and say, "I suppose it can't be helped!" For science now gives you this news: You can check the loss of those precious elements!

Scientists attest the fact that Lux Toilet Soap . . . gentle, completely free from harshness, quickly soluble, and containing precious elements skin itself has . . . is an unquestionable aid in keeping the skin young looking . . . soft and smooth.

No wonder so many famous screen stars have found from years of personal experience that Lux Toilet Soap is so marvelous for their skin. No wonder it is the official soap in all big film studios!

A Younger Looking, Lovelier YOU

SCIENCE tells you that pure, safe Lux Toilet Soap actually contains precious elements all skin must have to look young. These elements are found in the skin itself—an abundance in fresh, youthful skin, less in skin that is growing old, unlovely.

HOLLYWOOD has proved through years of daily use this soap actually keeps every type of skin younger looking.

MILLIONS of women (and men) everywhere confirm Hollywood's experience.

Prove to yourself how exquisitely soft, smooth and young this lovely soap will keep your skin: Start using Lux Toilet Soap today.

"It certainly does keep the skin young looking," says Elizabeth Love, Lakeland, Florida

"I've been using Lux Toilet Soap for ever so long. From the very first I discovered that what the Hollywood stars say about this fine soap is true. It certainly does keep the skin youthful looking. And not only that, but it seemed to me in no time at all my skin became much clearer and softer. I certainly wouldn't use any other soap for my skin!"

Tips on CONTRACT

Over-Ruff Coup.
By TOM O'NEIL.

Trumps bunched in the hand of one adversary which cannot be dropped or captured by finesse can be taken at times for compelling that adversary to ruff and then overruffing.

The declarer has to shorten his trumps to the same number as those held by the adversary toward the end of the hand. This is in order that the declarer shall not have to lead trumps, thereby permitting the adversary to make a trick that he otherwise would not.

The shortening process involves trumping good tricks at times. In such cases the play is known as the grand coup. The same principle, other than unnecessary trumping, is involved in the plain coup. Here is a hand in illustration:

	NORTH ♠K 2 ♥J 7 5 3 ♦A K 6 3 ♣6 6 5
WEST ♠Q ♥Q 9 8 4 2 ♦Q 10 8 5 ♣Q 9 7		EAST ♠J 6 5 4 ♥10 6 ♦J 9 7 ♣J 10 4 2
(DEALER)	SOUTH ♠A 10 9 8 7 3 ♥A K ♦4 2 ♣A K 3

Mrs. Florence Osborn dealt the hand and bid a spade. West passed. North offered two diamonds. East passed. South said three spades. North then helped the spades to four, and South went to little slam.

A glance at all the cards and one might think that the declarer must lose a spade and a club. But the hand can be made against any defense. As Mrs. Osborn handled the situation, toward the end of the hand West won a trick with the club queen, and then whatever was led East had to trump and the declarer overtrumped.

West opened the fourth best heart, the ace in the South hand taking the trick. A low spade, led up to the king, dropped the queen. The declarer then knew the probabilities were that East had three spades to the knave, and, since only one spade was left in the North hand, East must make the spade knave unless there was a coup situation.

The only finesse possible was taken against the jack. The king of hearts was played, followed by a lead to the king of diamonds. A heart in the North hand was ruffed South, a diamond led to the ace and a diamond from dummy ruffed by declarer.

The ace and king of clubs were played, with the three spot following. West took the trick. East now held only the jack and six of spades. South had the ace-ten.

Whichever trump East ruffed with, South overruffed and then caught East's last trump with the last trump in the South hand. Here was the climactic situation:

	NORTH H—J D—6 C—8
WEST H—Q D—Q C—Q		EAST S—J, 6 C—J
	SOUTH S—A, 10 C—8

It happens that the hand can be made also by a squeeze play. If after finessing once against the spade knave South lets East win a trump trick and then plays out all the trumps, West will be squeezed so that North will take a trick either with the knave of hearts or the diamond six.

But the coup is the safer play. The success of the squeeze depends on West's holdings. How the adverse non-trumps lie is immaterial in the coup method.

Know Any?

There have been big sets under the new rules, and "Tips on Contract" would like to present some of the largest. They should not be absurd penalties imposed on overbidding novices, but sets incurred on what seemed to be justifiable bidding or on hands where freak distribution or excellent or artful defense caused the declarer to come to grief. Other players would be interested in such hands as well as in instances of your successful contracts involving instructive bidding and play.

A Good Slogan Any Time

"Mind your business" is the inscription on one of the oldest coins minted in this country. It is a copper piece, dated 1787, part of a collection of rare coins.

New York Wet 5 to 1 According to Digest

New York, May 23—New York will vote wet by over 5½ to 1 in today's balloting on the Prohibition issue if the forecast of the last Literary Digest Prohibition Poll proves as accurate here as it has in the five other states voting on the issue prior to New York.

Of the 502,616 "straw" ballots received in The Literary Digest Prohibition Poll a year ago, 84.73 per cent were for repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment.

In Michigan, a comparison of the final official vote with the Prohibition Poll returns shows a forecast error of 3.25 per cent dryer; in Rhode Island, of 2.6 per cent wetter; and, in Wisconsin, of 2.2 per cent wetter.

With returns from New Jersey incomplete, a comparison shows that state voting 1.5 per cent wetter than the Poll, and Wyoming, also incomplete, 7.6 per cent wetter.

The magazine's editors state that if this same minor deviation from their Prohibition Poll returns holds in the New York balloting today, the state will vote wet by upwards of 80 per cent.

BOY SCOUTS ENJOY HIKE AND SUPPER IN MOUNTAINS

Sunday, May 21, 20 scouts and leaders of Troop 12 of Kingston Boy Scouts sponsored by the First Dutch Church, took a troop hike up Mount Tremper near Phoenicia. Cars took the scouts to the foot of the mountain, and the boys hiked from there to the tower on top.

Upon arriving at the summit, there was a rush to see who would go up on the tower first, as only six people are allowed in the tower at one time; however everybody had a chance, and all agreed that the view was great.

The scouts then cooked their supper on the top of the mountain and afterwards descended the mountain, where they were met by the cars and whisked off to Kingston.

The troop takes this opportunity to thank those parents and friends who helped make this occasion a success by furnishing transportation and assistance on this trip.

Postage Stamps Had to Be Cut or Torn Apart

In the early days of postage stamps no provision was made for separating the individual stamps and it was necessary to cut them apart as needed. Steps were soon taken to improve this condition and a system for perforating stamps was patented by Henry Archer. Great Britain purchased this patent and after some improvements began issuing perforated stamps in 1854.

Within a few years most of the larger countries had bought machines or had built them along similar ideas.

Machines for perforating stamps are built on one of two mechanical principles, either operating in a rotary manner with the perforating pins arranged on the rim of a small wheel, or in a vertical direction with the pins on a bar like the teeth of a comb. Either type may be built to perforate single rows of stamps, or entire sheets, at one operation.—Chicago Tribune.

The Mer de Glace

The Mer de Glace is a glacier in Switzerland which, like other glaciers, is caused by a body of ice at the high altitude which does not melt because of the low temperature but continues to flow down the side of the mountain. Bodies buried in ice of this kind are very apt to be preserved for years with very little deterioration.

Kingston District Stewards Met May 19

An interesting session of the Kingston District Stewards was held in the Methodist Episcopal Church at Windham on May 19. Dr Shaw, the district superintendent, had arranged a program that was very helpful and contained an added interest in that the speakers were all laymen.

Dr Julian I. Gifford opened the program with an address on "The Challenge of the Five Per Cent," in which he discussed the present day problems and their philosophic and religious implication. That five per cent of the people do the thinking of the world was his major premise and this was developed in relation to present problems of their philosophic and religious significance.

The second speaker, Chester A. Smith, of Peekskill, brought an inspiring and thought-provoking message on the theme of "Who Shall Possess America?" Problems suggested were "Shall selfishness in economic life possess America or shall the Christian principle of sharing possess the land? Shall sobriety and righteousness possess America or shall drunkenness, lawlessness and racketeering?" Shall national isolation possess the philosophy of America or shall international understanding and cooperation become its standards?"

In the afternoon the Rev. C. W. Wilbur of Poughkeepsie brought a message on "Methodism's Man Power" in which he plead for definite, like procedure in the recruiting of men for the church of Jesus Christ. The subject of religious education and methods was admirably presented.

The following report of the Temperance Committee was unanimously adopted:

Whereas, after more than one hundred years of noble effort and sacrifice to secure prohibition of the liquor traffic, our country has succumbed to wet propaganda and our state is about to vote on the election of delegates to the constitutional convention for the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment, and

Whereas the great American delusion is that the revenue from the sale of beer and wine will help our economic situation, not realizing the truth of the principle that that which is morally wrong is always economically unsound and

Whereas the liquor traffic has always been destructive of character and the great enemy of the home, as well as a promoter of political corruption and graft:

Therefore be it resolved, that we laymen and ministers of the Kingston District Stewards Meeting record our whole hearted support of the Eighteenth Amendment of the constitution because it preserves the principle of home, morals and sense.

Furthermore, we urge our ministers to make this issue clear to their congregations so that all Methodists may register their vote and be sure to vote on Tuesday, May 23, and we also urge on the public the necessity of a 'dry' vote.

Whereas it is important that these facts be published in full in the minutes and as far as possible in the local newspapers.

Prejudices

What is not necessary in this life is that one should build up false distinctions based on nothing more than prejudice. For the many of them, however, are bugged with price when they do nothing but prevent the holder from enjoying something or other which he otherwise would enjoy.

Mercury Has No Atmosphere

Spectroscopic photographs of Mercury, the planet closest to the sun, reveal that it is a dry sun-baked world lacking both air and water. The spectroscope breaks up light beams and reveals the elements which modify the reflected rays of the sun. Although other planets show the existence of an atmosphere, the tests on Mercury came out a complete blank. —Pathfinder Magazine.

ARE YOU a BETTER JUDGE of VALUE THAN YOUR Grandmother WAS????

YOUR Grandmother had her hands full when she went shopping. She was as interested in getting the best value for her money as you are. But to be sure of getting the best value she had to go to every store in town that carried the things she wanted . . . . then she had to bargain with the merchant to find his real price . . . and then she had to use an eagle eye, a sniffing nose, experienced fingers and her trained taster to be sure that the merchandise was all that the merchant claimed it to be.

Your Grandmother knew value all right—but Oh My! how she had to work using that knowledge.

For you it's a different story—YOU can use the advertisements to tell you where to get it . . . . the fair price to pay for it . . . . and when it's advertised you can be sure the merchandise is as represented.

Henry Ford
Dearborn, Mich.

May 22, 1935

I suppose that I may claim to be the first Ford Dealer. I not only made cars, but sold them and frequently delivered them myself.

The "drive away" is not new; often I have driven cars from Detroit to towns in Ohio or Indiana or Michigan to make delivery.

There were no good roads in those days, and the people where I drove had never seen a motor car before.

My first really enthusiastic customers were Country Doctors. They were the first to realize the value of dependable transportation in a widely scattered practice.

Even today I occasionally hear from some of those first Ford users.

We had to teach local mechanics how to care for the cars. That is how Ford Service began, which is now found everywhere in the world.

We believed from the beginning that a sale does not complete our transaction with our customer — it creates upon us an obligation to see that our customer's car gives him service. Ford Dealers know their duty to the public in this respect.

I can say of Ford Dealers generally that they have been and are men of character and standing in their communities. Most of them have been with us many years, which indicates that we agree on basic business principles. The Company provides that the methods used to sell the Ford car are consistent with the self-respect of the Dealers who handle it.

The present Ford V-8 is the peak of our 30 years experience.

We have never made a better car. Its eight-cylinder engine is powerful and smooth running. The car is admittedly very good looking and has comfortable riding qualities. It is economical in operation because of advanced engine design and low car weight. It is the fastest, roomiest and most powerful car we have ever built.

At The Theatres

Today

Kingston: "Today We Live." British youth caught in the maelstrom of the World War is the subject of this unusual talkie, with a splendid cast headed by Joan Crawford and Gary Cooper, and supported by the capable playing of Franchot Tone and Robert Young. It's the story of three British people, a girl, her brother, and her lover. All are swept into the war when a rich American comes over to England and rents their ancestral home. The girl and the American fall in love, and numerous complications develop. There are some of the most thrilling war scenes ever filmed in this talkie, and the direction of Howard Hawkes insures fast and abundant action. The work of Miss Crawford is exceptional, while Gary Cooper, Robert Young and Franchot Tone all add new laurels to their picture popularity. Something to see.

Orpheum: "If I Had a Million" and "The Intruder." A galaxy of Paramount's most popular stars compete for honors in this interesting story of a millionaire, about to die, who picks out several names at random from the city directory and hands each one of them a million dollars. Gary Cooper, George Raft, Jack Oakie, Frances Dee, Charles Laughton, Richard Bennett, and Wynne Gibson are all in the large cast. "The Intruder" is a mystery drama with Monte Blue and Lila Lee.

Broadway: "Grand Slam." Bridge playing, bridge experts, and bridge in general is taken for a merry ride in this rollicking comedy riot that takes the game apart and puts it back together again with reckless humor. The plot concerns a Russian waiter turned bridge expert, and a hat check girl with a craze for the game. Of course the waiter discovers a system of play so much so that society is howling before him. It is all a lot of fun, but a bit hard on some of the much publicized experts and their systems of play. Loretta Young, Paul Lukas, Helen Vinson, Frank McHugh and Ferdinand Gottschalk head a fine cast.

Tomorrow.

Kingston: Same.

Orpheum: "Down to Earth" and "The Penal Code." Will Rogers in the star of the first attraction, a story centering around the recent depression. There is a lot of worthwhile comedy in this play, some good common sense, and some very capable acting by the large cast. "Penal Code" is another prison story that headliner Regis Toomey has the center.

Broadway: Same.

Financial and Commercial

New York, May 23 (AP)—The stock market swung upward again today, as bears became discouraged over the failure of an important reaction to develop out of the sagging tendencies of recent sessions.

Recent speculative favorites among the "wet" stocks were whirled upward, and many industrials and rails promptly followed, with several advances ranging from 1 to 4 points or more. Strength of wheat, up about 2 cents a bushel, and a good rally in cotton, helped the movement in shares.

Extreme advances of 3 to more than 4 points appeared in Allied Chemical, U. S. Steel preferred, Owens Illinois Glass, Crown Cork, American Telephone, Union Pacific, U. S. Industrial Alcohol, Western Union, and Santa Fe. Motors turned decidedly strong, with gains of about 1½ to 2 points in General Motors, Chrysler and Nash. U. S. Steel, DuPont, and American Can advanced about 2. Oils and coppers were relatively quiet. Utilities advanced but moderately. By early afternoon the general list was somewhat under the early highs and trading was quiet.

While corporate and business news was meagre, it remained of a hopeful character, and bullishness once more dominated the share market.

The rise in wheat and cotton added impetus to the movement in shares.

Unconfirmed rumors that the Federal Reserve System had, or would quickly, start its open market credit expansion program, together with a sag in the dollar as against gold currencies, lent an inflationary aspect to the market once more.

Britain Shares President's Views

London, May 23 (AP)—The British government, replying today to President Roosevelt's message to the world, declared that it "entirely shares the President's view" that on the successful outcome of the world economic and disarmament conferences depends "the future happiness and prosperity of the world."

Britain, the reply said, was "all the more encouraged by Mr. Roosevelt's message because the President places as the first step of his program adoption of the draft disarmament convention presented by the (British) prime minister March 16."

Britain believes that if a disarmament agreement can be reached "the result will be restoration of confidence among the nations of the world and that thus the best preparation will be made for the vital decisions which the world economic conference will be called upon to take."

American Heroines

By LOUISE M. COMSTOCK

Mary Jemison

A WHITE woman, stolen from the feast celebrating her coming marriage to a white man only to become the willing bride of an Indian brave: that was Mary Jemison, the "White Squaw of the Genesee," one of the strangest and most romantic of all American heroines. Some have it that she actually did return to her own people late in life, but the fact that she died on the Buffalo Creek Indian reservation disputes that; others maintain she refused to return because her people would not accept also her half-breed son; many claim she became reconciled to her red captors and their mode of life and preferred it. Certainly in the sturdy figure clad in fringed Indian garments, wearing her hair in two long braids and carrying her baby papoose-fashion on her back that the sculptor has prepared for her memorial in Letchworth park, on the Genesee river in New York, there is freedom, confidence, even peace.

It was in 1758, during the French and Indian war, and when Mary was seventeen, that the Senecas swooped down upon her pioneer home at March creek, in Buchanan valley, Pennsylvania, massacring all the family and carrying the girl off with them. At Fort Duquesne her captors turned her over to two old squaws, who took her with them to Ohio. Here, as Deh-ga-han-nus, "all things good," she began her life as an Indian, and here two years later she wedded Sheninjee, warrior of the Delawares, and later bore to him her son, Thomas Jemison.

The next spring, her son strapped to her back, this white girl set out with her husband, and two Indian brothers to sell furs at Fort Pitt. From there the brothers and Mary journeyed on to the Genesee, five hundred miles beyond over harsh wilderness trails, leaving Sheninjee behind to join them the next spring. Mary reached the Genesee, but she never saw her young husband again. Indian trappers brought her news of his death.

When the baby she had carried with her from the Ohio was four, Mary married again, Hiokatoo, known as a "bad" chief, but apparently a kind husband. By him she had six children whose sole claim to the attention of the historian it seems was in examples of inherited "badness." Hiokatoo died "of consumption" at one hundred and three. In 1797, at a Big Tree Council of the Six Nations, Mary was given deed to a tract of 17,000 acres, included now in Letchworth park. In 1826 the Senecas sold their holdings in this region to the whites, but Mary retained her property and lived on, surrounded by her children and grandchildren, an alien among her own people. A few years before her death, in 1833, she moved to the reservation, returning at the last to sanctuary among her adopted people.

Harper Molyneaux of the Kingston Airport and Dr. Bush while riding in Harper's airplane this afternoon were forced down in a plowed field on the lowlands off Albany avenue by motor trouble. Neither one was injured and the machine was not badly damaged.

Water Mills Disappear; Now Relics of the Past

Throughout Europe, as well as America, the multitude of quaint little grist mills which are run by water are fast becoming relics of the past, writes a correspondent in the Pathfinder Magazine. In Jugoslavia it has been the custom to perch a tiny mill or even a series of such mills in the middle of a small stream.

This reduces the cost of the plant, as the mills are exceedingly simple. They consist of little more than a big box, set up on stilts right over the water. The flour is of the genuine "whole wheat" type, as it is not even sifted.

Such mills, though very picturesque, are not efficient, as they produce such a small amount of flour. Their use is being discontinued in localities where other and more modern power can be had. Electric current has been introduced very widely where there is water power, and of course gasoline motors are used to a large extent.

Tusks of Mammoths

Because of their finer texture and distinctive "old ivory" pallor the well preserved tusks of the ancient hairy mammoth are more valuable than elephant ivory. Eskimo hunters and white gold miners in Alaska have reaped a valuable harvest from the tusks of the prehistoric mammoths they have uncovered along the perpetually frozen ground of the Arctic coast. Such tusks have proven even a greater source of profit to prospectors in Siberia, from which region it is estimated that the tusks of approximately 20,000 mammoths have reached the world's ivory markets since Siberia has been under the control of the Russians.

Population of the World

There are many millions persons on earth who are unknow[n to] the census taker, so there are no reliable figures on the population of the world. But the International Statistical Institute of the League of Nations, at Geneva, estimated in 1930 that there were more than two billion human beings on the earth. In the United States there were 62,137,080 males and 60,637,965 females.

Not as Many Shad This Year as La[st]

Hudson river shad fishing is now in full swing on the river here, and local fishermen state that the run of shad is not as heavy as it was last year, although it is much larger than it had been in other years. The season ends here on June 15. Among the local fishermen from Kingston Point are Louis and John Saccaranso, Theodore and Nicholas Leminer, Abram Rappleyea and Charles Dai[l]er.

Shad prices are reasonable this year, and shad are bringing about the same prices as last year when the supply was plentiful. A buck shad can be bought for 25 cents and a roe shad from 40 to 50 cents, depending on the size.

According to one of the local fishermen a buck shad will average from 2½ to 3 pounds, while a roe will average about 4 pounds.

Shad fishing is now being done at night off Kingston Point, and the hauls are made at the turn of the tide in the river.

One of the largest shad reported netted this season is a fish that tipped the scales at 10½ pounds, which was caught by a Malden fisherman.

Home Bureaus of County Meet Today

The county-wide and program planning meeting of the Ulster County Home Bureau was held today at the hall of the Clinton Avenue M. E. Church. The day's program opened at 10:30 o'clock this morning with report from the following chairmen of the various communities:

There was also in progress a most interesting and worth while exhibit of articles made and work done by the women of the Home Bureau during the past year. This exhibit was still receiving valuable additions up to the noon hour, when it was to be completed as to entrances.

The reports took on added interest in that they were given orally as brief addresses rather than as written statements, giving more elasticity to the chairmen in telling of the work done.

SPORT SLANTS

By ALAN J. GOULD

(Associated Press Sports Editor.)

For my own personal file, I would have liked a copy of Bill Terry's reaction when he saw in the public prints that the Cardinals had sent big Paul Derringer to Cincinnati in their recent exchange of players.

It just happens that the Giants' youthful pilot spent the greater part of the late winter and early spring trying to lay hands on a pitcher of Derringer's calibre. He particularly paid court to Sam Breadon, of the Red Birds, and all he ever got from Sam was a busy signal.

Bill first wanted Dizzy Dean, which was a most laudable ambition, if nothing else. Then he suggested Tex Carleton, then Derringer; then most any good, healthy pitcher the Cards could spare. Unfortunately, there wasn't a thing Breadon could do for his old pal, Bill.

With Derringer on the firing line taking turns with Carl Hubbell, Freddie Fitzsimmons and the two youngsters, Parmelee and Schumacher, the Giants would be able to show the rest of the National league some fancy pitching seven days of most any week.

Reds Have Strong Staff

While on the subject of pitching, (incidentally, it may be pointed out that Donie Bush has gathered himself a very presentable collection of flingers at Cincinnati. In Derringer, Red Lucas, Si Johnson, Bob Smith and Benny Frey the Reds have a staff that, on paper, at least, compares favorably with the best of them.

If Morrissey can fill the departed Leo Durocher's shoes at shortstop and such sluggers as Chick Hafey, Jim Bottomley and Ernie Lombardi get their batting eyes clicking in unison this summer, the Reds could create a lot of fun in John Heydler's league.

They Say Lefty's Slipping

One of the most interesting items gathered by the intelligence department concerns Lefty Grove, the renowned speedballer from the hill country.

At the writing, Grove has done no better than break even in six engagements, and anyone who has followed the box scores the last five or six years knows that isn't at all like the A's southpaw. Why, two seasons ago, the real hot weather had passed and a blanket was beginning to feel comfortable before Lefty lost his third game.

At any rate, the report is that Lefty's fast ball isn't quite what it used to be. The batters, we gather, are beginning to see it before it even reaches the plate.

Somehow, it's a little difficult to believe the Lonaconing Lefty already is beginning to get frayed around the edges. He's built to last a lifetime on the mound, tall and lean and wiry as a rawhide whip. He's never known what a sore arm felt like.

There's just a possibility that Grove's poor start hasn't been entirely his own fault. The A's shortstopping has been pretty ragged and uncertain most of the spring, and there's nothing will sap a pitcher's confidence quicker.

WILL CATON.

The famous trainer and race driver, Will Caton, who at one time raced a string of trotters for the Czar of Russia, and who knocked 'em right and left on the grand circuit in 1931 and 1932 with those two champions, Protector 1:59¼ and The Marchioness 1:59¼, has moved his string of stars from Syracuse to Goshen, where he will open the 1933 campaign at the Bay State Circuit meeting to be staged over the half mile track June 6, 7 and 8.

Caton looks to have another crack three-year-old trotter in the flashy going bay colt, Calumet Donald, which he is pointing for the $50,000 Hambletonian Stake and other rich events for trotters of his age to be raced this year. Caton purchased this colt for $210 at the New York sale in 1931, and as he trotted to a record of 2:08¾ at Goshen last week, it looks as though he picked a diamond in the rough, in fact he thinks that the colt will trot close to two-minutes before the season is over.

Gardeners To Meet Herzogs Tonight

The City Baseball League will resume activities at the Athletic Field this evening with Harry Sills's Gardeners meeting Herzog's Hardwaremen. The Gardeners need this game to stay in the race, while the Hardwaremen need it to get into the winning column. Game is scheduled for 6:20 sharp.

Paul Joyce, who has been doing most of the hurling for the Gardeners, is expected to be on the mound again with Joe Messinger behind the plate. Ed Flemming will do the pitching for the Hardwaremen. If both pitchers are in form a pitchers' battle should ensue. John Hotaling will do the receiving for the Hardwaremen.

The five-gallon can of oil donated by Kendall Oil Co. for the next home run will be in danger tonight with such heavy hitters as Bill Schwab, Paul Joyce and "Hank" Cragan batting.

All Stars Have Sunday Contest And Holiday Game

Manager Johnny McCardle has his All Stars getting in shape for two games that he believes will give them a good test before the Decoration Day holiday passes and they settle down to the business of playing only first rate road teams.

Sunday the All Stars will play the Newburgh team that they recently defeated by the score of 8-7. The Hilly City players are anxious to even things in the return engagement, which promises much to the fans in the way of action. In their first appearance here, although they lost, the Orange county experts touched City Judge Bernard A. Culloton for 14 hits and only three struck out. They feel they can beat him, which remains to be seen. The game was the first of the season for the judge, who is now in better condition with three contests under his wing. After edging out Newburgh he took on the Port Jervis Trojans, striking out 12 men in shutting them out 6-0, and the Van Etten & Hogan Truckers, whom he set down 14-2. Only six of the colored swatters were able to touch his slants for hits. Nine of them fanned.

Memorial Day, May 30, the fast Albany Black Sox will make their appearance at the Kingston Fair Grounds, bringing back the memories of the days when the old Kingston Colonials played. This club has been taking the measure of everything along the line. For this contest the All Stars will have as pitchers Judge Culloton, Ted Fraleigh of Saugerties and Jimmy "Babe" Voelker, their star moundsman last season, who has been inactive lately because of illness, but is about ready now to resume work on the diamond.

After the holiday the Stars contemplate playing against such attractions as Red Hook, Freddie Dahn's Poughkeepsie All Stars, the House of David, Detroit Clowns, Havana Cubans, the Maplewoods and New York Police.

Tagging Major League Bases

By HERBERT W. BARKER
Associated Press Sports Writer

There'll be no American League Fenway Park's this year but the Boston Red Sox, subjected to terrific punishment for many years, definitely are on the upgrade.

The combination of Tom Yawkey's bankroll and Eddie Collins' baseball astuteness, plus the aggressive leadership on the field of Manager Marty McManus, is producing dividends and long-suffering Red Sox fans can expect relief from now on.

Yawkey and Collins have done no reckless spending but slowly and surely they've built up a really formidable club through the acquisition of Southpaw Lloyd Brown and Catcher Rick Ferrell from the St. Louis Browns, George Pipgras, veteran right hander, and Shortstop Bill Werber from the New York Yankees, and Allen (Dusty) Cooke, fleet outfielder, from Newark.

Behind Pipgras' seven-hit pitching, the Red Sox whipped the Chicago White Sox yesterday, 3-2, for their third successive victory and drew to within half a game of the seventh-place Detroit Tigers. Pipgras had no worries after Johnny Hodapp, who collected a double and two singles during the day, had driven home the first two Boston runs in the first and third frames. Cooke's homer in the seventh accounted for the other.

Clean Sweep For East

The Yankees, Washington Senators and Philadelphia Athletics also won to give the eastern clubs a clean sweep over the west. Vernon Gomez, slim southpaw, outpitched Wes Ferrell as the Yankees outpointed the Cleveland Indians, 3-0, bunching three of their six hits with an error and a pass for all their runs in the eighth. Although beaten, Ferrell had the satisfaction of giving eagle-eyed Joey Sewell his first strikeout of the season.

Washington strengthened its hold on second place, a game behind the Yankees, by beating Detroit 6-5, chiefly because they bunched most of their hits off Carl Fischer and Lyn Rowe for five runs in the first and fourth frames. Alphonse Thomas came to Earl Whitehill's rescue in the eighth when the Tigers rallied for two runs, within one of a tie.

Eddie Cichocki's single in the eighth scored Jimmie Foxx with the run that enabled the A's to upset the Browns, 6-5, after the St. Louisians came from behind to tie the score. The eminent left hander, Robert Moses Grove, pitched the last three innings and received credit for the victory.

"Pepper" Martin Stars.

Three shutouts marked the National League program. Pepper Martin's tenth inning home run with two on broke up a pitching duel between Bill Walker and "Hard Luck" Ed Brandt and gave the St. Louis Cardinals a 3-0 triumph over the Boston Braves. The Brooklyn Dodgers turned back the league leading Pittsburgh Pirates by the same score and moved into fourth place as William Watson Clark outpitched Larry French in another duel of southpaws. Young Hal Schumacher gave the Cincinnati Reds only three hits and the New York Giants won easily, 9-0, battering Si Johnson and Allyn Stout for 16 hits of which Sam Leslie contributed four.

The improving Phillies flayed Burleigh Grimes and Lynn Nelson for 14 hits and walloped the Chicago Cubs, 11-4.

Dart Baseball Finale Wednesday

Final games in the Church Dart Baseball League will be played Wednesday at 8 p. m., at the Fair Street Reformed Men's Club rooms, the contesting teams being the Church of the Comforter, winner of the first half of the league, against the St. Paul Club, victorious in the second half. It is expected that the match for the championship will be witnessed by at least 300 men coming from the following clubs: Clinton Avenue M. E., Connelly, Fair Street Reformed, Redeemer, Ponckhockie Congregational, Port Ewen, St. Remy, St. James, and from the contesting clubs, St. Paul and the Comforter.

Country Was Overloaded With Hard Times Tokens

The crisis of 1837 created an acute shortage of coins of all kinds. Copper pieces of many varieties appeared, issued by individuals and by corporations. And many were issued for advertisement purposes, or for political propaganda, the majority of the political coins exemplifying the spirit of scurrilous and bitter partisanship of the time of Andrew Jackson. Even a button factory in Waterbury, Conn., issued many thousands, and the volume in Baltimore reached such proportions that federal officers took steps to prosecute private coiners under the provisions of a long-forgotten law of May 8, 1792.

These coins were known as "hard times tokens." The country was overwhelmed with them, and for a few months in 1837 they seemed to drive out all coin from circulation. Those bearing the phrase "substitute for shinplaster," were issued during this dearth of currency, by irresponsible state banks over which the government had no control.

The date November, 1837, appearing on the coin was that of a convention held in New York on the twenty-seventh of that month by representatives of leading banks in 19 states, to fix a date for resumption of specie payment. These representatives met again April 30, 1838, and decided to resume payment in specie the tenth of May following, which was successfully accomplished after a suspension of exactly one year.

Black Bear Likes Ants

The black bear ranges extensively in search of things to eat, from carcasses of cattle, carrion rats and frogs, to ants and bees. His method of obtaining honey, choice morsels to be sure, is to turn his paw down into an ant's nest and leave it there until the ants swarm on it, when he can lick them off.

Color of Baby's Eyes

It is not only possible, but says Pathfinder Magazine, is it of quite common occurrence for a child to have brown eyes if the eyes of both parents were blue. This would not be likely to occur if the different strains of the human race had been kept isolated for centuries, but every person of European descent is almost sure to have had both brown-eyed and blue-eyed ancestors. Blue eyes might run in the families of both parents for several generations, only to have the brown-eyed trait show itself after the brown-eyed ancestor had been forgotten. All babies are born with blue eyes, but many of them soon change to other shades.

Lanterns Des Morts

Or "Lanterns of the Dead," as they are called, sounds quite mysterious. About half way on the road from Angers to Poitiers, in France, there is the old town of Fontevault, famous for an ancient abbey where English kings have wished they could be buried and for a fine example of those "lanterns." The purpose of these tall stone funerary lanterns, built like inland lighthouses, was not known until a few years ago, when it was referred to in the writings of Peter, the Venerable, a Twelfth century abbot of Cluny, that they were lit in homage to the dead Christians. Most of them date from the Eleventh century.

Guiding Blind Ships

More than half a million ships are guided up and down the Thames every year by the pilots attached to the great Port of London, says the Montreal Herald. Pilots are taken on board vessels to steer them through dangerous reaches and channels, or to take ships in and out of harbor, and while on board they take command. Occasionally a pilot is compelled to take long voyages because the weather makes it impossible for him to board the pilot boat. Some time ago a pilot taking the liner out of Queenstown had to go to New York because he was unable to leave the ship in heavy weather.

ANNUAL YOUTH CONGRESS PLANNED FOR NEXT FALL

The Second Annual Youth Congress will be held this year at the Y. M. C. A. Camp at Glenerie starting Friday afternoon and continuing through Sunday, September 15, 16 and 17. The Board of Directors of the Kingston Youth Council will act as the committee in charge of the Congress, and promise that an excellent Youth Congress will be presented at that time.

Kimbol Pirie, president of the council, will be in charge, and will be assisted by the following directors: Oscar Lawatsch, who will have charge of arrangements at the camp; Wilson Tinney, in charge of publicity; Miss Marion Coutant, in charge of registration; Miss Eleanor Lawatsch and Bert MacFadden in charge of recreation; Henry S. Van DerZee in charge of worship programs.

The various chairmen will begin picking those necessary to assist them in preparation for the conference, and will begin their work in earnest now.

The Directors at its regular meeting, also decided that the meeting of June 7, will be held at the Y. M. C. A. Camp and that a "covered dish supper" is to be served.

It was also decided that the "Youth Council Bulletin" should be revived and continued. Oscar Lawatsch and Wilson Tinney were appointed in charge of this project and were given power to appoint those who are to assist them.

Flashes of Life Sketched in Brief

By The Associated Press

Neenah, Wis., May 22 (AP).—When Tead Sweem calls the H. J. Post of the G. A. R. to order he'll be talking to himself.

He received notice from the state G. A. R. headquarters to call a meeting of the local post and inasmuch as he's the only survivor of the Civil War in Neenah he'll have everything his own way. When the meeting is held he'll be appointed commander for the remainder of his life.

He is 87 and promised the post would meet once every two weeks.

2,000 Well Wishers

Chicago—Two thousand persons, high in judicial and political affairs paid tribute to Mary Bartelme, Cook county's only woman judge, who is going to retire June 5 after 12 years on the bench of the "world's largest juvenile court."

Slight Error

Vinita, Okla.—Believing she had killed R. V. Fuller, who, she said, came to her house while intoxicated and started a quarrel, Fannie Nichols surrendered to Sheriff John York.

Sheriff York, however, discovered that the pitchfork with which the alleged slaying had been accomplished only scratched Fuller, and the stupor in which he was found was not death.

Dark Before Dawn

New York—Charles De Cromer now knows how quickly a black horizon can become rosy with hope. Jobless at 60, he said "What's the use?" and slashed his wrist. Just then along came a friend to offer him a job. He'll take it as soon as his slight wounds heal.

Old Timers Found

Magnolia, Ill.—Forty of those old fashioned silver dollars, the newest of which was turned out by a U. S. mint in 1883, were plowed up by Peter Vogel, preparing a garden.

Makes Things Easy

Chicago—A talking kitchen to make life easier for the housewife has been installed at the Chicago World's Fair. The talking is done by a mechanical device that explains the use of all the kitchen equipment, and points each item out by turning on spotlights as the subject of conversation switches from one thing to another.

Snake in the Box

Chicago—The candy box someone placed on Mrs. Ebba Brazeau's porch didn't contain candy. In it was found a copper-head, the venomous reptile whose bite sometimes is deadly.

Policemen entrapped the serpent in a glass jar and said they would ask postal inspectors to investigate. Mrs. Brazeau said she didn't know why anyone should wish to send her a snake.

A Power of Suggestion

New York—"I'm shot," yelled a burglar when police cornered him in a grocery store. Amazed, the policemen, who had not fired a shot, watched him slump to the floor with what looked like blood covering his face.

Drawing nearer, they guffawed. The blood was the yolk of an egg, which had fallen on his head from a shelf.

Add Signs of Prosperity

Pittsburgh—The city jail offers evidence that business is really looking up. Desk Sergeant Arch McCartney says for the last three years the average "drunk" had but a nickel or a dime in his pockets, if anything.

"And in the last month I've been finding from 50 cents to $5 on every tipsy fellow we get," he says.

POLITICS at Random

By BYRON PRICE
(Chief Of Bureau, The Associated Press, Washington)

One easily-overlooked feature of the rapidly-moving events at Washington is the purely temporary and experimental character of most of the changes made since March 4 under the leadership of President Roosevelt.

So much has been happening that the country has come to look on the new order as an established fact, and to speak of the "Roosevelt program" as something now nearing completion.

No conception could be farther from the truth. As a matter of accuracy Mr. Roosevelt scarcely has made more than a beginning toward the permanent changes he has in mind to put the nation on a new track.

He has been dealing all along with emergencies, or at least with what he regards as emergencies. He is occupied now in patchwork, rather than in altering the basic pattern of national life.

He is administering restoratives, and the larger problem of bringing the patient through the process of recuperation remains for the future.

Temporary Measures

The temporary character of the banking, farm, and public works legislation proposed by the administration is apparent. The inflationary authorization voted by congress was plainly labeled a momentary expedient. The taxes now proposed are to carry a provision for their own cancellation when the need disappears.

It may be said that the securities bill and the proposal for regulation of industry have enduring features, yet Mr. Roosevelt explicitly described these measures as of emergency character when he recommended them to congress, and there seems to be no feeling in administration quarters that they will provide permanent solutions.

It is evident that the President and his advisers hope by the temporary and experimental means to accomplish two things:

They hope the stimulus provided will start an upward spiral of economic activity, bringing the country back within the course of the next few months to a condition near normal. Incidentally, many administration officials think that hope is showing definite signs of fulfillment.

Secondly, they hope the period of transition and experimentation will teach them some lessons which will be of great value when the time comes for permanent legislation.

Watching And Learning

The effect of this purpose on current legislative proceedings is increasingly apparent. There is no question, for instance, that Mr. Roosevelt expects in his term to accomplish a sweeping permanent revision of the banking laws.

Yet all efforts to bring such legislation to passage at this session have failed to stir more than lukewarm support from the administration. Meantime, every day, the administration is learning from the operation of the emergency bank act now in operation.

Unquestionably, one of the chief occupations of the President's advisers during the coming recess of congress will be to observe closely the workings of the measures which have been more or less hastily written on the statute books this session, and compile a laboratory report for use next session.

In fact such a report already has been started, but Mr. Roosevelt is not likely to reach any conclusions until it is far more complete.

Rip On The Trail

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

"Oh dear, oh dear," sighed Willy Nilly. "Now Top Notch is missing. He said he would be back this very evening to let us know what he had discovered and if he had had any success as a detective."

"He certainly saved my life when I was in trouble," said Rip, the Dog, "by discovering that it was a chicken hawk who had stolen the chickens. I'll never forget what he did then!"

"I do hope that he isn't in any trouble," said Willy Nilly. "Dear me, dear me, things were so peaceful for a while. It was true that I didn't get my chores finished, but they do not matter so much. Only we had been having such a good time with Honey Bear and Jelly Bear getting married and setting up house-keeping, or cave-keeping, and now it has been one thing after another.

"First the Bears are accused of killing the farmer's lambs and the farmer won't let them free, and now Top Notch is missing. I am so afraid that the one who killed the lambs has captured our Top Notch."

Tears began streaming from Willy Nilly's eyes.

"I'll go and find him," said Rip, the Dog. "It's the least I can do after all Top Notch did for me. Besides, I am worried."

"But I am so afraid you'll get lost, or something will happen to you," Willy Nilly said mournfully.

"I must go out and look for him," Rip insisted. Little did Rip know what was in store for him as he trotted off.

ZENA COUNTRY CLUB TO PRESENT COMEDY

Zena, May 23—The Zena Country Club Players will present the three-act comedy, "Baron Boloney", written by Dan Lynch on Saturday evening, May 27, and will be followed by a dance. Music will be furnished by a popular orchestra.

The characters in the play are Baron Hausman and his daughter, Winnie; Rudolph, motorcycle police; Uncle Julius and his niece, Jennie; Prof. Bugsby; Mrs. Little and her daughters, Lilly and Lotta; Lula (female impersonator and her fellow actors) (two endmen) Bones and Tambo; The Deputy Sheriff and two holdup men.

Winnie, Jennie and Rudolph attend a minstrel show in a neighboring town in which Jennie's sweetheart plays the part of Lulu, a female impersonator, Lulu returns to the "Castle" with them and the following morning, "The Baron" and Uncle Julius, both widowers looking for a wife, discover her and proceed to make love, much to the amusement of the girls and Lulu. The Professor also falls in love with Lulu. Mrs. Little's daughters have been encouraging the advance of the Baron and Uncle Julius and in the struggle of the two men over the honor of carrying Lulu's baggage on her departure the girls assist their respective admirers. Mrs. Little enters the struggle and in an endeavor to pull Lulu's hair, removes her wig, and is dumbfounded to find that Lulu is a man. Jennie clears up the mystery by introducing Lulu as her sweetheart.

By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD — There's been much talk in Hollywood about the ills of the industry, and now "sick pictures" themselves are about to be doctored.

Music and sound effects are the chief "medicines" in the proposed treatment of "ailing" films. And there are others—sometimes a major operation, with scissors to do the necessary amputating.

"Many producers have made pictures, only to learn too late that something was wrong with them from the beginning," explains Abe Meyer, who, with Dan Milner, is planning a venture into film doctoring.

"The result is that the picture goes on the shelf—a repeated process that represents fortunes wasted. So we propose to do things."

How? That's simple. By looking over the sickly product, diagnosing its malady, taking it apart and putting it together again—with a new dressing of continuity, some salve of music, perhaps a bolstering splint of sound effects in the midriff of the drama. Going out, on their own if need be, to shoot additional scenes which would make a fair picture from a poor one, or a good one from a fair.

The idea goes farther than that, however, including advice on the "ounce of prevention"—that is, consultations with the producer before shooting begins, so that incipient cinema "diseases" can be nipped at their source.

No, Says Leatrice

Leatrice Joy, once a big name in pictures, was at lunch in a studio restaurant the other day, and conjecture as to her possible return to films arose at once. But Leatrice said no. She had come with her step-daughter to rent a costume from the studio wardrobe for a party.

She retired from the screen when she married, and—"I've gone domestic with a vengeance," she said. "But it is exciting to come back, even for a day, isn't it?—something fascinating in the atmosphere," she added with a laugh.

Cutting-Room Bits

Franchot Tone, jilting it off now as a leading man, pronounces it "Fran-cho" not "Frank-o"—and he was born in Niagara Falls, N. Y. ... Dorothy Burgess, the same who was Tonia in "In Old Arizona," is a lady gangster chief in a new film. ... Helene Madison, the swimming star, is a cop in the same—and it isn't a Mack Sennett picture—Sennett let her swim when she was there.

BEST PAPER IN 250 YEARS SAYS JUDGE CLEARWATER

May 22nd, 1933

To Editors of The Freeman,
Gentlemen:

It is not needed I should say that humanity is apt to be vociferous in condemnation, but inarticulate in commendation.

In modest departure from the latter idiosyncrasy permit me to add that Friday's issue of The Freeman in news of the day, comment upon passing events, character of advertisements and handsome appearance surpasses any newspaper that has appeared in Ulster county during the two hundred and fifty years of my residence.
